REPORT OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL TO THE
CONGRESS OF THE UNITED STATES ON THE
ADMINISTRATION OF THE FOREIGN AGENTS
REGISTRATION ACT OF 1938, AS AMENDED,
FOR THE CALENDAR YEAR 1974

TO THE SENATE AND HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES OF THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA IN CONGRESS ASSEMBLED:

I have the honor to report on the administration of the Foreign Agents Registration Act of 1938, as amended, pursuant to Section 11 of the Act, which requires the Attorney General from time to time to report to the Congress concerning the administration of the Act, as well as the nature, source and content of political propaganda disseminated or distributed by agents of foreign principals registered under the Act.

It has been the policy of the Department since 1950 to prepare a report each year. This report covers the administration and enforcement of the Foreign Agents Registration Act for the calendar year 1974.

STATISTICAL SUMMARY

During the year 1974, the Department received 67 new registration statements and terminated 54 registrations, leaving a total of 509 active registrations on file as of December 31, 1974. Individuals acting as officials or employees or rendering assistance to a registrant for or in the interest of the latter's foreign principal filed 572 short-form registration statements under the Act.

In this reporting year, the staff of the Registration Unit reviewed over 1,000 supplemental statements and processed 14,786 pieces of both incoming and outgoing correspondence which involved other government agencies, registrants and the general public. There were 147 agreements with new foreign principals reported by agents already registered under the Act.

ADMINISTRATION AND ENFORCEMENT

Following the issuance on March 13, 1974 by the General Accounting Office of the "Report to the Committee On Foreign Relations - United States Senate - Effectiveness of the Foreign Agents Registration Act of 1938, As Amended, And Its Administration By The Department of Justice" (B-177551) the administration and enforcement of the Act underwent considerable change. With an increase in the size of the staff an ongoing program of inspections of registrants pursuant to Section 615 of the Act was inaugurated. In the last half of calendar year 1974 over 80 such inspections of books and records were conducted by the staff. The primary purpose of these inspections is to determine whether registrants are fully disclosing their activities on behalf of their foreign principals. In many cases it was determined that insufficient disclosures were being made and 308 amendments to registration statements were obtained. The 80 inspections conducted represent more than 6 times the number of inspections that have been made in the last 35 years. In addition, a program of field conferences was established to assist new registrants in fully meeting their reporting obligations under the Act. During the last half of the calendar year, 48 such field conferences were conducted.

One of the primary purposes of the Foreign Agents Registration Act is to protect the integrity of the decision making process. In this connection, a vigorous liaison program has been undertaken with the staffs of the various Committees of the Congress which deal with foreign matters. The aim of this program is to acquaint Committee staff members with the reporting and disclosure requirements of the Act as well as the availability of registrant filings for their use, and to obtain information relating to individuals coming to the Committees' attention who may have an obligation to register under the Act. A similar program was also established with several agencies in the Executive Branch dealing with various matters in which there is substantial foreign interest.

The Department has continued the practice of distributing copies of registration statements and supplements thereto to interested departments and agencies of the Federal Government.

NATURE, SOURCE AND CONTENT OF POLITICAL PROPAGANDA

The following is an analysis of the principal trends noted during 1974 in the propaganda material disseminated within the United States in the English language on behalf of the foreign principals and geographical areas listed. Principal publications are set forth together with the approximate circulation figures per issue.

During the year 1974, 5,650 dissemination reports were filed in connection with the distribution of over 13,500 different pieces of propaganda which were submitted.

William R. Joyce, Jr.      Statement

William R. Joyce, Jr. appeared before the House of Representatives Committee on Agriculture on March 7, 1974, to offer testimony on behalf of the Argentine sugar industry relative to the proposed extension of the Sugar Act of 1948. Mr. Joyce asked that the Argentine sugar industry be allowed to maintain its 1974 quota for selling sugar to the United States. In support of the Argentine request, Joyce cited that nation's past performance under the quota system and their willingness to fulfill additional U. S. sugar needs; Argentina's negative balance of trade with the U. S. over the last decade; and the wages and social benefits earned by Argentine sugar workers.

The Australian Science Newsletter is a monthly information report which covers a wide range of scientific interest, as can be seen from the following list of titles: "Sodium and the Human Memory", "Tidal Power Study", "Australian Brown Coal", "Martian Journey Outlined", "Textiles and Flammability", and "Eradicating Cattle Tick".

The Australian Economic Newsletter reports far ranging developments which affect the nation's economy, including the rate of inflation, development of natural resources, consumer trends and foreign investments. The May issue predicted that "boom conditions" would prevail in the Australian economy for the second half of 1974, because of expected sharp increases in capital expenditure by manufacturing and mining companies in the January - June period.

Australian Daily News provides daily coverage of events in Australia. A sampling of issues covered during 1974 follows.

UNITED NATIONS: Australian Delegate to the United Nations Mr. Duncan Campbell addressed the Decolonization Committee of the U. N., and warned "colonial powers that the time in which worse bloodshed could be avoided was running out." Mr. Campbell accused the Portuguese Government of "outmoded, repressive and reprehensible" practices in their African territories, and predicted the failure of the colonial structure. He stated further that oppressed people would be forced into rebellion against colonial powers.

TRADE: Australian trade experts embarked on a trade promotion tour to seven Southeast Asian nations in March, 1974. The purpose of the trip was to explain Australia's system of tariff preferences for developing nations, and to offer advice and assistance to those marketing their products in Australia.

NUCLEAR TESTING: The Australian Government issued formal protests to the French and the Chinese Governments (People's Republic of China) in June, 1974, as a result of those nations' nuclear tests. Australian Daily News reported that Prime Minister Whitlam has stated that relations between France and Australia have deteriorated over the past several years because of continued French nuclear testing, which threatens Australian territory with radioactive fallout. Australia has attempted to resolve the issue through the International Court of Justice, and in June, 1973, the Court granted Australia "interim measures of protection", prohibiting any further French nuclear tests which might cause radioactive contamination of Australian soil. France has ignored the Court's determination, and the protests by Australia. The Australian Daily News reported that the Chinese test might also cause radioactive fallout to be deposited on Australian territory. Because China does not recognize the jurisdiction of the International Court of Justice, Australia has not initiated any proceedings in this matter before the Court. According to Australian Daily News, however, "the Australian Government considers that the Chinese Government, as well as the French Government, has a clear obligation towards the international community to prevent the dangers of environmental pollution. The present Australian Government has consistently opposed nuclear weapon testing by all countries and will continue to work vigorously for a complete cessation of such testing."

KOREA: Australia and the Democratic People's Republic of Korea announced the establishment of diplomatic relations on the Ambassadorial level in July, 1974. Australian Minister for Foreign Affairs Senator Donald Willesee stated that this recognition does not indicate a downgrading of Australian relations with the Republic of Korea (South Korea).

Australian Weekly News Roundup provides a weekly summary of Australian news and events, much the same as Australian Daily News.

Australia Now is a general information magazine publication of the Australian Government Department of the Media and the Department of Overseas Trade. Throughout 1974, Australia Now featured articles on such topics as transportation in the outback regions of the country, the growth in the air cargo industry, progress towards development of an orbital engine, and the use of solar energy to relieve the world energy shortage.

Cleary, Gottlieb, Steen & Hamilton	Statements Brochures	50-100 100

On March 5, 1974, Mr. Robert C. Barnard of Cleary, Gottlieb, Steen & Hamilton appeared before the House of Representatives Committee on Agriculture during the Committee's hearings relative to the proposed extension of the Sugar Act of 1948. Mr. Barnard appeared on behalf of CSR Limited, Sydney, Australia, the marketing agent for the Queensland Sugar Board and the Australian Sugar Industry. Mr. Barnard supported a five year extension of the Sugar Act, and sought a substantial increase in the Australian quota under the Act. Citing the growing world consumption of sugar, and ensuing periods of "tight supply and shortages", Mr. Barnard credited the U. S. quota system for having assured the nation of necessary sugar supplies, even when the world market is short. "Right now, in the face of substantial evidence of world shortage persisting for some years ahead, is the time for the U. S. to assure its priority of supply by fixing realistic quotas in an extension of the Sugar Act for a period of five years. This will be a major step in insulating the U. S. consumer from the expected world shortage." Mr. Barnard also cited Australia's reliability as a supplier, having gone beyond its quota in years past to meet additional U. S. demand. A substantially increased quota, Mr. Barnard stated, would enable Australian growers to increase their production. Without the long range, firm commitments achieved through a program such as the U. S. Sugar Act, producers are unwilling to spend the money to clear new land and build new mills.

The second statement disseminated by Cleary, Gottlieb, Steen & Hamilton was in response to a series of questions posed by the Committee concerning participation in the sugar program, performance capability, and information concerning the supplier country.

New South Wales Centre Pamphlets, brochures, books Various

The New South Wales Centre distributed numerous booklets and brochures which were designed to encourage foreign investment in the area. One of these publications, New South Wales: A Handbook for Investors, provides a survey of the economic and industrial potential of the area. Prepared by the Department of Decentralisation and Development, Sydney, New South Wales, Australia, the Handbook provides charts and text to inform the reader of economic conditions, overseas investment and trade, taxation, industrial conditions, industrial and commercial land and building costs, and the availability of fuel, power and transportation. The Handbook invites foreign investors, particularly those with the skill and "know-how" to aid in the balanced development of the area's resources, and promises that "There is every reason to expect that the Australian economy will continue to expand in the years to come and that there will be many opportunities, open to both overseas and local enterprises, for the profitable investment of capital."

Other publications disseminated by New South Wales Centre throughout the year include the following:

Business Man's Guide to Australia
School Project Material on New South Wales
Establishing A Business In Australia
Australia In Brief
Oil and Australia 1972
Economic Projections to 1980

Sydney Morrell & Company, Inc. publishes Australia Newsletter ten times yearly on behalf of the Victoria Promotion Trust Fund, Melbourne, Australia. Australia Newsletter is an eight page publication which reports on developments in Australia in the fields of industrial development, trade, scientific and technical advances, and other areas of interest generally related to business and industry.

Several issues of Australia Newsletter contained articles on the topic of Australian policy towards foreign investment, apparently a controversial issue on the national level. In January, 1974, the Chairman of the Victoria Promotion Committee, Sir Maurice A. Nathan, stated that his Committee's "working principal" has been that foreign investment has been, and continues to be, an important factor in promoting economic development in Australia. The Committee offers free expert advice on investment possibilities.

An article later in the year criticized federal policy on foreign investment, stating that the policy of restraint has gone too far, that "Australia's status as a prime investment area for overseas business has been impaired and that sources of foreign capital are in danger of drying up if the current federal policy is not modified." Critics of the federal policy agree that complete foreign ownership is not desirable for the economy, but argue that partnerships or joint ventures should be encouraged; the foreign investment policy should "distinguish between a blind 'new nationalism' and a sturdy desire to rely on ourselves as far as possible." One Australian business leader had this to say about current federal policy: "We are frittering away the goodwill of the world financial community in an alarming way. Since at this time investors are looking for places to cut off their credit lists, we may well see big costs in our actions in the next two years."

Australia

Other items in Australia Newsletter during 1974 concerned such topics as wool production, industrial decentralization, the Port of Melbourne, and an increase in crude oil production.

Sydney Morrell & Company, Inc. also disseminated A Guide To Investment, designed for businessmen interested in industrial investment or other business opportunities in the State of Victoria, Australia.

Testimony

Max N. Berry of the law firm Berry & Gipson testified before the Subcommittee on Dairy and Poultry, Committee on Agriculture, House of Representatives, on May 14, 1974, concerning HR 9419, Foreign Dairy Quality Act of 1973, and related bills. Mr. Berry testified on behalf of OEHEG, the Austrian Hard Cheese Export Association of Innsbruck, and OEMOLK, the Austrian Soft Cheese Export Association of Vienna. In his testimony before the Subcommittee, Mr. Berry stated that enactment of HR 9419 would result in the "creation of a non-tariff barrier of significant proportions," in that it could impose an inspection system of dairy farms and processing plants in foreign countries, and require 100 per cent inspection of all dairy products imported into the U. S. These new inspection requirements would involve a "very costly and burdensome administrative process." Mr. Berry stated that Austria has exported cheese of the highest quality to the U. S. since 1956. He further noted that Austrian dairy farms and processing plants are regularly inspected by the Austrian Government to insure the highest sanitary standards and maintained that current inspection procedures are adequate to insure the sanitary quality of dairy product imports.

In February, 1974, Mr. Berry submitted a letter to the U. S. Department of Agriculture stating his opposition to a proposed increase in the price support for Cheddar cheese.

Infoplan International, Inc. disseminates press releases on behalf of Communications Affiliates, (Bahamas) Ltd. on behalf of the Government of the Bahama Islands, Nassau. The following topics were among the subjects of press releases during 1974: establishment of the first Bahamian consulate in the U. S.; changes in the cabinet of the Bahamas Government; expanded service of Bahamasair, the national airline of the Bahamas, between the Bahamas and points in the U. S.; and the introduction of new tax formula, to be applied to casinos operating in the Bahamas.

The Barbados Industrial Development Corporation (BIDC) disseminated a series of eleven pamphlets entitled Barbados: A Special Survey for Businessmen, which is designed to provide enough detailed information "to enable one who has never seen Barbados to carry out a sound preliminary study of the project he proposes."

The pamphlet Investing In Barbados reports that BIDC is a government agency whose function it is to encourage and develop new industry and hotels on the Island, with an aim towards improving the economy of the area through increasing employment and exports, decreasing the need for imports and raising productivity and efficiency. BIDC assists new businessmen in locating factory sites, applying for benefits under the Incentive Laws, recruiting and training employees, and preparing applications for work permits. The pamphlet explains the provisions of the Incentive Laws, including a ten year tax holiday, which is followed by a company tax rate of only 12 1/2%, and duty-free importation of materials and equipment to be used in the manufacturing process.

Additional industrial and investment news was disseminated through the publications Operation Beehive and Barbados.

The press releases disseminated by Policano/Rothholz, Inc. report news of interest to potential investors in Barbados. One release reported on a Miami luncheon hosted by the Barbados Industrial Development Corporation to introduce local industrialists to the incentives offered investors under the Barbadian program "Operation Beehive". These incentives include "duty free importation of raw materials used in the manufacture of goods for re-export, lease-purchase arrangements of government constructed factory space, and unrestricted repatriation of capital and profits." Other attractions of Barbados include a tax holiday, corporate tax ceiling, highly literate work force, government assistance in selecting and training employees, and modern air and deep water ports.

Another press release announced plans by the Barbados Industrial Development Corporation to hold a "Barbados Business Opportunities Week" in January, 1975, to provide American businessmen with an opportunity to witness "the enormous growth the country has experienced in manufacturing and to learn about the unique opportunities present for American manufacturing."

Several of the releases reported on a study made to determine the cost effectiveness of industrial expansion in Barbados. The study of five different industries concluded that American and Canadian manufacturers locating in Barbados could realize savings of up to $1 million after taxes, over plant locations in their own countries.

Beehive Business Briefs is a newsletter type publication which included the following articles:

- "Government Announces New Development Plan"
- "Canadian Program Encourages Investment In Developing Countries"
- "Energy Crisis Leads to New Exploration"

BELIZEArthur L. Quinn and Arthur Lee Quinn

Statement

Belize, a British colony formerly known as British Honduras, was represented by Messrs. Quinn and Quinn during the House of Representatives Committee on Agriculture hearings on the proposed extension of the Sugar Act. They told the Committee that sugar cane processing is the largest industry in Belize, and that economic development on the whole has been "painfully slow to date." Among the circumstances which promise to keep Belize "essentially dependent" on agricultural production for the foreseeable future are the absence of a basic infrastructure, the lack of mineral resources, a lack of investment capital, and little or no hope for attracting major industrial development.

Belize's quota under the U. S. Sugar Act has allowed a "solid and steady expansion of the most important industry in the nation, and ever increasing prosperity for thousands of citizens." The sugar industry, the country's largest employer, accounts for 65% of Belize's agricultural production, and earns approximately 50% of the country's foreign exchange.

As evidence of the good relations between Belize and the U. S., Messrs. Quinn and Quinn reported that Belize welcomes U. S. citizens as tourists, investors and residents, that more than 20% of the privately owned land in Belize is held by U. S. citizens, that 25 of 47 Government granted development concessions have been issued to U. S. citizens, and that the U. S. enjoys a very favorable balance of trade with Belize.

BOLIVIA

TADCO Enterprises, Inc. Statement

Herbert J. Waters, President of TADCO Enterprises, Inc., testified before the House of Representatives Committee on Agriculture on behalf of the Government of Bolivia. Mr. Waters appealed to the Committee for an increase of 40,000 tons in Bolivia's quota for exporting sugar to the U. S. under the proposed extension of the Sugar Act of 1948. The quota increase was sought, according to Mr. Waters, because Bolivia has recently expanded both cane production and milling capacity. Additionally, Bolivia regards the assurance of the U. S. export market to be "essential to its long-range commitments for rural development aimed at leaving behind the vicious circle of misery, backwardness, and underdevelopment of the past. It prefers the assurance of price stability provided by such a commitment to marketing in the U. S. to the uncertainty of gambling on the world market, despite present high world prices."

Albert S. Nemir appeared before the House of Representatives Committee on Agriculture hearings on extension of the Sugar Act of 1948, on behalf of The Brazilian Sugar and Alcohol Institute (I.A.A.). Mr. Nemir stated that Brazil was prepared to guarantee the yearly delivery of up to one million metric tons of sugar to the U. S., despite the fact that the U. S. market price for sugar was below the world market price. Brazil is capable of meeting such a large quota because that nation is the world's largest producer of cane sugar, has the capacity to expand production, and has built good storage and port facilities.

In support of an increase in the Brazilian quota, Mr. Nemir cited the "long tradition of friendship" between the U. S. and Brazil, the rise in U. S. exports to Brazil, and the "favorable investment climate" which U. S. investors find in Brazil.

Marvin A. Leibstone, registered under the Foreign Agents Registration Act as an agent of Ambassador Uhm Sim of Cambodia, disseminated one issue of a newsletter Focus: Cambodia, which was published by the American Friends of Cambodia. The newsletter reported on the fighting in Cambodia between that nation's armed forces and some 50 thousand communist insurgents, who are assisted by 8 or 9 thousand North Vietnamese troops. The newsletter stated that U. S. participation should be in a form of increased foreign aid, "to provide only the necessary arms and equipment to help the Lon Nol government fight the Khmer Rouge and cause their deterioration."

Development Counsellors International disseminated press releases throughout the year on behalf of the Nova Scotia Communications and Information Center. One of the releases announced that a brochure was available from Nova Scotia's Crown Corporation, Industrial Estates Limited, for potential U. S. investors in the province. This brochure reports advantages offered by locating manufacturing plants in the province, including modern port facilities, a growing economy, a skilled labor pool, and special financial arrangements.

The press releases also report on another brochure made available through the Crown Development Corporation, which details the electronics industry in Nova Scotia, citing more favorable conditions which exist for manufacturers there. Federal and provincial governments offer incentives, in the forms of loans, grants and manpower training, for new industry and research.

Other press releases reported on gold mining, government expropriations of private property, and developments in ocean research.

The Government of the Province of Alberta, Department of Industry and Commerce, disseminated two brochures designed to encourage industrial investment in Alberta. Alberta Canada At A Glance details the Province's geography, climate and population, health and social services systems, and economic life. The brochure also reports that the Province enjoys an abundance of natural resources.

Alberta Industry and Commerce emphasizes Alberta's resources and the government support of industry. The brochure states that both provincial and municipal governments "provide every assistance to facilitate growth and development. Alberta's firm financial position ensures reasonable policies and practices in taxation and no provincial sales tax, estate or succession duties exist. Alberta keeps careful watch on municipal taxation in industry to guarantee equitable practices throughout the province."

Quebec At A Glance is a monthly magazine publication of the Government of Quebec Department of Communications, which contains feature items on life in Quebec. Topics covered during 1974 include the following: "The Montreal Stock Exchange 1874 - 1974", "General Development Agreement Between Canada and Quebec", "Quebec Professions Board Protects the Public", "Quebec Oil Exploration Stepped Up", "Quebec - Maple Sugar Company", "Quebec - Port, Interport, Superport", "Quebec: City of Skyscrapers or Reminder of the 'Old World'", and "A Communications Policy for Quebec".

Quebec 74 is a monthly economic bulletin published by the Quebec Department of Industry and Commerce. The January issue reports that the Quebec government initiated steps aimed at transforming the province's industrial structure. Government assistance is to be directed towards the "establishment and expansion of high technology industries with the maximum possible multiplier effects and, . . . promoting mergers and groupings of existing firms with a view to raising productivity." One of the measures adopted created the Quebec Industrial Development Corporation, which offers "selective and flexible aid" programs, including the following: "granting of loans at reduced or market interest rates, assumption of part of the cost of loans, purchasing of shares, guaranteeing of loans, (and) renting or sale of industrial machinery and buildings." Additional services and programs have also been created to encourage Quebec's industrial development.

The bulletin reports that the Quebec Department of Industry and Commerce intends to promote the manufacture of items which are saleable on the world market, in order to increase participation in international trade, and thereby expand Quebec's economy. Citing the example of several small

European nations, the bulletin states that Quebec "must compensate for the weaknesses inherent in the limited size of its economy by specializing it and by submitting it to international competition in order to strengthen the competitive capacities of its production machinery."

Other topics covered in Quebec 74 included advances in the petrochemical industry, development of a new air traffic control system, and reports of a two day conference in Japan to discuss trade relations, investment and industrial opportunities.

Perspective On Quebec, published by the Financial Times of Canada, "was primarily designed for managers and investors, in Canada and around the world, who are interested in Quebec for business reasons." This publication contains information on the provincial government, federal and provincial incentive programs for new investors, the economy, transportation network, economic infrastructure, energy supplies, natural resources, and opportunities to invest in such growing fields as tourism, oil and uranium development, mining and forest products potential, as well as industry and manufacturing.

Profile Of Quebec, a publication of the Quebec Information and Publicity Bureau (Department of Communications), details information on the history, territory, political life, social life, economy, and cultural life of the province.

Other materials disseminated by Quebec Government House include an issue of the Financial Post devoted to Quebec, news releases, pamphlets, and a report on the economy.

Colombia Today is a monthly newsletter published and disseminated by the Colombia Information Service. Each issue focuses on a single topic, usually relating to an aspect of the nation's economy, such as industrial decentralization, development of energy resources, foreign trade, and agricultural production.

Colombia Information Service also disseminated a booklet entitled Labor In Colombia, which details that nation's social security system and the benefits it provides employees, in addition to numerous charts showing the distribution of the population by age, education, and various economic sectors.

The Asociacion Nacional de Cultivadores de la Cana de Azucar, the Association of Sugar Cane Growers of Colombia, was represented by Mr. Blake Franklin of Coudert Brothers during the House of Representatives Committee on Agriculture hearings on the proposed extension of the Sugar Act. The Association sought an increase in their quota, to 120,000 tons of sugar. Mr. Franklin reported that Colombia has always given preference to the U. S. market when exporting sugar, as in 1962 when Colombia, without a quota under the U. S. Sugar Act, was selling its sugar to the U. S. for a price little more than half of the world market rate. Since being granted a quota in 1965, Colombia has regularly supplied all of its quota allotment, in addition to filling emergency U. S. needs.

Mr. Franklin also touched on the subjects of expansion in the production of sugar cane, ownership of the mills and plantations, employment figures, employee benefits, and the friendly relations existing between Colombia and the U. S.

Roy Duffus Associates, Inc. disseminated periodic news releases throughout 1974, almost all of which were on behalf of the Colombia Information Service. Many of these releases were synopses of the newsletter Colombia Today which is published by the Colombia Information Service.

Other releases included a report on Colombian citizens who live in the U. S. being allowed to vote in Colombia's presidential election; and on behalf of the Colombian Trade Development Bureau, announcement of an exhibit of fashion accessories at the Colombian Center in New York.

DOMINICAN REPUBLIC

James N. Juliana	Statement	100
Associates, Inc.	Letter	38

James N. Juliana made a statement on behalf of the sugar industry of the Dominican Republic before the House of Representatives Committee on Agriculture hearings on the proposed extension of the Sugar Act. Mr. Juliana requested an increase in the quota granted the Dominican Republic, saying that such an increase was "absolutely necessary for the progress and economic growth" of the country. The sugar industry is critical to the Dominican economy, which is heavily dependent on exporting agricultural products to earn the foreign exchange needed to purchase raw materials and manufactured goods abroad. Sixty per cent of this foreign exchange income is earned from the sale of sugar. In addition, wages and benefits earned by employees in the sugar industry account for the livelihood of nearly 10 per cent of the Dominican population.

Mr. Juliana cited the Dominican Republic's past record in fulfilling its quota, and assured the Committee that an even larger quota could be met in the future.

Mr. Juliana later wrote a letter to Committee members, responding to a charge of an outstanding claim against the Dominican Government by a U. S. citizen who maintains that his property was expropriated without adequate compensation. Mr. Juliana advised Committee members that this particular situation is "not an ordinary investment problem", and that the claimant "has not presented to proper authorities in the Government of the Dominican Republic any information to support a legitimate claim." He urged the Committee to disregard such "frivolous allegations."

ECUADORArthur L. Quinn and

Statement

Messrs. Quinn and Quinn appeared before the U. S. House of Representatives Committee on Agriculture to present a statement on behalf of the sugar industry of Ecuador, and its continued participation in the proposed extension of the U. S. Sugar Act. They reported that Ecuador's economy had experienced tremendous growth in the last three years, due to the discovery and exportation of extensive petroleum reserves. The petroleum revenues will be used to finance a five year development program, intended to diversify Ecuador's dependence on agricultural production, while at the same time expanding that production. Expansion of the sugar industry is an essential part of the five year plan, and integral to the Ecuadorian economy itself. Ecuador wishes to continue participating in the U. S. sugar program because it "is the one external outlet upon which the industry can depend and provides a solid base for expansion."

Messrs. Quinn and Quinn characterize the Ecuadorian Government and peoples' attitude towards the U. S. as "traditionally friendly," and report that the "somewhat touchy situation regarding seizures of American tuna fishing boats has been stilled and normal diplomatic relations have resumed between Ecuador and the United States."

FIJI

Graham Purcell	Pamphlet	250

---

Graham Purcell represented the sugar industry of Fiji before the House of Representatives Committee on Agriculture hearings on the proposed extension of the Sugar Act. The sugar industry is a dominant factor in Fiji's economy, accounting for almost two-thirds of the nation's foreign exchange income, and providing employment for thirty per cent of the active labor force. The success and stability of this industry determines to a great extent how the whole economy of Fiji will fare. Fiji's participation in the U. S. sugar program is considered essential, because it assures "a guaranteed outlet at remunerative prices." Mr. Purcell noted that the U. S. quota would become of even greater importance after 1974, when Fiji's guaranteed market in Great Britain under the Commonwealth Sugar Agreement would be terminated due to Great Britain's entrance into the European Economic Community. At the time of Mr. Purcell's testimony, March 6, 1974, negotiations between Fiji and the European Economic Community concerning an arrangement regarding the sale of sugar had not yet begun.

Mr. Purcell stated that Fiji was prepared to provide the U. S. with up to 100,000 tons of sugar per year.

The French Industrial Development Agency disseminated several publications designed to encourage U. S. investments in France on behalf of DATAR, a group of economic planners whose "function is to coax French and foreign investors into new industrial or service projects in some of the regions of France suffering from high unemployment or the decline of such traditional areas of employment as fishing or ship-building." A report prepared by The Journal of Commerce entitled France Economic Planners Balance Growth with Environmental Concerns in a New Industrial Age, states that during the past fifteen years France has developed into a "modern industrial powerhouse." This publication consists of fourteen articles reprinted from The Journal of Commerce, the first one entitled "France Envisions Its Role As Entrepot for Europe". According to this article, French planners foresee their country becoming "the key commercial intermediary between Europe and the developing countries of Africa and the Middle East" by the year 2000. "In their view, France is ideally suited to assume the role as the main channel for trade and investment flows between Europe and the Third World because it has historic ties with former colonies that are now major producers of scarce raw materials and, more significantly, because its coastline, harbors and river systems provide easy access to Europe's industrial heart."

An article entitled "Foreign Investment Seen As Vital For Industrial Future" reports on government efforts to attract foreign investors. A study conducted by the government concluded that foreign investments have benefited France in the past, in the creation of new jobs, strengthening exports and increasing foreign exchange earnings. Conditions in France considered attractive to foreign investors are: "the presence of a large market, the favorable outlook for French economic growth, the availability of skilled labor and industrial zones, the quality of life, and the welcome given new investments."

DATAR Newsletter from France, disseminated twice in 1974, promotes France as an industrial base, and reports on developments designed to attract investors. For example, the Newsletter reports that current plans call for France's highway system to be tripled in the next ten years, with emphasis on newly developing industrial areas to best take advantage of the country's central location and easy access to other Common Market countries. Other articles in the Newsletter report the advantages of investing in the Mediterranean areas of Provence and Languedoc, described as the "gateway to the 'next frontier' - the developing markets of the 1980's: North Africa and the Middle East"; plans to develop an air transportation system to meet the future needs of businesses, including the capability to commute between major European cities and expansion of air cargo facilities; and improvements in the nation's ports and increased handling capacity. In general, the Newsletter maintains that "France offers a real opportunity to foreign companies to gain a growing share of the Continental market. The incentives for manufacturers are considerable: cash grants, tax exemptions, subsidies for industrial development, and availability of skilled labour. Above all, France has a central, important position in the Common Market."

Ruder & Finn, Inc. issued one news release for the Mission Interministerielle pour l'Amenagement touristique du littoral Languedoc - Roussillon, announcing a U. S. visit by French government officials seeking U. S. investors for development of Europe's largest recreational area in Southern France. The area to be developed includes six separate tourist resorts spread along the 100 mile coastline between the French Riviera and the Spanish Costa Brava. Related facilities developed in conjunction with the resort area include air and sea port accommodations, a modern highway network, and the installation of water, sewage, electric and telephone systems. Reasonable prices in the area have been assured through government subsidies and the non-profit nature of the public development corporation. In addition, "comprehensive city and community planning guidelines" have been established to prevent land speculation and high prices from affecting the development.

H. William Marquardt, representing The Free and Hanseatic City of Hamburg, disseminated numerous brochures during 1974, all promoting the port of Hamburg, and the advantages to setting up an industrial base in the City - State of Hamburg. Information details the port facilities and capabilities, the modern methods employed in general cargo handling, the proximity of the port to industrial production facilities, and the availability of rail, road, air and sea transportation to manufacturers.

The City of Hamburg is described as the largest industrial city in Germany, with representatives of all industries, except mining, located there. The city's economy is based on industry, trade and services, and from here "over a thousand importers and exporters tie their business relations with all countries of the world, here most of the important German newspapers and magazines are published and printed, here are radio and television broadcasting stations." To demonstrate Hamburg's position as a "hub of economic activity", a brochure entitled Hamburg lists the following establishments found in the city: "Head offices of international organizations. 115 German and international banks. 70 consulates, more than anywhere else in the world except New York. One of Europe's main stock exchanges. Insurance companies to cover all risks. Importers and exporters with the know-how born of long experience and keen competition. Business consultants. Data processors. International advertising agencies. Large publishing houses. Film companies. Radio and T.V."

Germany

In addition to the above attractions, West Germany offers a comprehensive package of incentives for investors who will locate in designated areas. These incentives include cash grants, low interest loans, low corporate tax on distributed profits and other benefits.

Brochures disseminated by H. William Marquardt include the following:

Roy Blumenthal International Associates, Inc. disseminates information on behalf of the Federal Republic of Germany, the City - State of Berlin Press and Information Office, and the German National Tourist Office. Releases issued on behalf of the German National Tourist Office report on tours available in Germany, sights of interest to visitors and special events.

Releases disseminated for the City - State of Berlin were concerned with such diverse news items as the opening of a new airport in West Berlin, special events and tourism in Berlin in general. One of these releases was concerned with an import trade fair held in Berlin, which sponsors hoped would serve to inform U. S. manufacturers of the marketing possibilities in West Germany. Comparative studies have shown that many American goods are competitive with or lower in price than their German counterparts, due to recent increases in production costs in Germany, and the continuing devaluation of the U. S. dollar. Germany imports 27 per cent of its consumer goods, more than any other industrialized nation of comparable size; in 1972 U. S. goods accounted for only two per cent of the German import market. In an effort to increase German import of U. S. goods, West Germany maintains "a liberal importing policy which helps American businessmen in reaching German markets as easily as possible. Custom charges . . . present no insurmountable obstacle to U. S. importers and do not price U. S. goods out of the competitive market."

Berlin Barometer, a newsletter published and disseminated by Roy Blumenthal International Associates, Inc., details investment conditions and manufacturing opportunities prevalent in West Berlin. In promoting West Berlin as a headquarters for international corporations, Berlin Barometer describes the city as a crossroads meeting place with unique opportunities for business contacts. "The Eastern sector of the city is the capital of the German Democratic Republic.

Businessmen from Comecon countries arriving in East Berlin may visit West Berlin for as long as 31 days without a West Berlin visa or residence permit. This enables business executives from East and West to meet daily in West Berlin over an extended period of time. Commercial contacts with East Germany and other Comecon countries has increased in recent years and the trend is likely to continue. As this materializes in the future, West Berlin's important role as a 'Gateway to the East' is likely to grow even more."

Another article in Berlin Barometer reported on West Berlin's "Law to Promote Berlin", a package of incentives and benefits offered to investors which includes "a number of tax privileges, low-cost loans and other financial incentives which make it highly attractive to businessmen who wish to establish new business operations in the city or want to expand or convert already existing facilities."

The British-American Chamber of Commerce	British-American Trade News Letter	2000 6
---	---	-----------

In July, 1974, Executive Director David Farquharson of the British-American Chamber of Commerce sent a letter to the Chairman and members of the U. S. House of Representatives Committee on Ways and Means, concerning the Committee's consideration of a proposal which would prohibit taxpayers from deducting expenses incurred while attending conventions, seminars and similar meetings held outside the U. S. Mr. Farquharson wrote that the proposal was imprecise, and possibly discriminatory. He stated that such overseas meetings have proved beneficial in that they have in the past served to stimulate the sale of U. S. goods abroad, encouraged foreign investment in the U. S., and furthered the development of tourism. He also advised that any restrictions discouraging U. S. organizations from meeting abroad would probably be countered by foreign organizations not planning their meetings in the U. S.

In stressing the importance of such international contacts, Mr. Farquharson wrote that "Legitimate meetings outside the United States play an important and integral part in promoting and expanding commercial interchange between the United States and Great Britain and the continuation of these meetings is essential if the economies of these two countries are to benefit from such interchange."

British-American Trade News is published periodically by The British-American Chamber of Commerce as a newsletter, devoted mainly to reporting Chamber activities. During 1974, Chamber meetings featured speakers who discussed such topics as North Sea oil production, British investment in the U. S. and the U. S. balance of trade.

Today's British Papers and British Weeklies reprint selections from daily and weekly publications in Britain. The reprints comment on the whole range of domestic and international issues, such as Britain's continuing economic crisis and various factors affecting it, the energy shortage, the election of the Labour party and Harold Wilson in Britain, turmoil in Northern Ireland, and political changes all over the world including a coup in Portugal, elections in Canada, fighting in Cyprus, and the resignation of Richard Nixon.

Policy Background and Policy Statements are in the form of official government press releases, reporting government action and official statements on the issues of the day. One of the Policy Background releases entitled "European Community: Renegotiation of Britain's Entry Terms", discusses Britain's desire "to bring about some fundamental changes in the policies and attitudes of the (European Economic) Community." Britain desires to renegotiate its terms of entry into the Community based on the following four issues: Britain's expected contribution to the Community budget is disproportionate to benefits to be received; the Community's Common Agricultural Policy fails to consider Britain's special positions as an importer of a large portion of its food, thereby threatening to "impose a heavier burden on its balance of payments"; certain Community trade policies are restrictive, and Community aid is unbalanced, in that it is limited to associated countries; and "unduly restrictive interpretations" of Community policy may affect Britain's plans to stimulate industry so as to relieve the country's general industrial decline.

Mr. James Callaghan, Britain's Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs, stated that if the attempts at renegotiation are successful, Britain would fully participate in the "construction of a new Europe."

Another Policy Background release reported on a meeting of NATO Foreign Ministers, and the Declaration on Atlantic Relations issued after the meeting. Britain's Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs Mr. James Callaghan, serving as President of the NATO Council, pointed out that the Declaration "takes account of the changing world situation and, in particular, the relative equality of the United States and the U. S. S. R. in a number of fields including arms. 'There is a strong note in this declaration,' he said, 'that you should use the instrument of the Alliance for securing improved international detente.' This is reflected in the declaration which reaffirms the conviction of member nations that NATO 'provides the indispensable basis for their security, thus making possible the pursuit of detente.'"

Topics of major interest in the Policy Statements issued throughout 1974 included the energy crisis, economic policy, developments in Northern Ireland, the European Economic Community, and the fighting in Cyprus. One of the Policy Statements reports remarks made by Mr. Roy Mason, Secretary of State for Defense, on the issue of the comparative military strength of NATO and Warsaw Pact countries. Mr. Mason cited the discussions being held between the Soviet Union and Western nations in the spirit of detente, but warned that while the talks could serve as a vehicle for building "mutual goodwill and patience," it is still necessary that NATO maintain a high level of security. He provided some details regarding military spending and developments by the NATO and Warsaw Pact countries, and stated: "I do not think that open aggression against the West is a likely possibility at present. But the military power of the Warsaw Pact is a powerful potential instrument of war, and a decisive military superiority of that nature could be employed to reinforce political pressures."

He warned that the results of a decline in NATO's military posture in Europe would be devastating. "A falling-off of NATO's relative military strength and in its relative determination to fight if need be could lead to a decline in its political self-confidence, in its cohesion, and in its power to resist such pressures. If this were to happen, the freedom of Western Governments to pursue policies of their own choice, either internally or in their foreign relations, could be restricted. We would be in a situation where our own policies and actions could be, at least partly, dictated by the reactions of other powers.

"The need is, therefore, for the West to have at its disposal strong and credible conventional deterrent . . . . Strategic weapons must be buttressed by tactical nuclear weapons and conventional forces, to provide NATO with a range of options in response to the degree and nature of the attack."

U. K. Economy reports provide monthly statistics of economic indicators, and publish monthly statements on economic conditions, in terms of energy availability, industrial production, investments, the labor market, wages and earnings, and wholesale and retail prices.

British Record, "a review of British affairs," briefly reports developments in such fields as energy resources, government elections, Northern Ireland, and transportation systems.

Fact Sheets on Britain, prepared by the Central Office of Information, London, are designed to serve as source material in the preparation of speeches, articles, etc. Each issue is focused on a single topic, such as: "The Legal System", "Government Employment and Training Services", "Financial Services of the city of London", and "Political Parties". Other fact sheet publications are devoted to developments in British industry, and reports on scientific and technological advances.

British Information Service also disseminates Radio Newslines and TV Newsbriefs to local radio and TV stations, reporting on topics of day to day interest. Numerous brochures, booklets and pamphlets are also disseminated, including the following:

The Central Government of Britain
The Regeneration of British Industry
Regional Development in Britain
Britain for Industrial Growth
Prosecutions in Northern Ireland

Policy and Reference Division Press Releases are concerned, for the most part, with the activities and speeches of British officials in the U. S.

Edward Gottlieb & Associates, Ltd. issued several press releases on behalf of the Cooperative Republic of Guyana, explaining the Government's position in a dispute with Reynolds (Guyana) Mines Limited. One such release, stating that the information reported is "attributable to a high government source," charges that "Reynolds is seeking to create the impression that the Guyana Government is forcing it from Guyana and confiscating its property," which the Government denies.

Another release reported on a meeting of the International Bauxite Association in Guyana, attended by delegations from Australia, Guinea, Jamaica, Sierra Leone, Surinam, Yugoslavia and Guyana, and observer delegations from Greece, Trinidad, Tobago, Ghana, Haiti, the Dominican Republic, and India. Prime Minister Burnham of Guyana urged the Association "to create a bauxite unit of currency in which all sales of bauxite may be denominated so as to buffer bauxite producers from the shocks of currency devaluations." He further stressed the need for local control of each country's "diminishing resources by way of either majority participation, or outright ownership." He also "took to task those multi-national corporations which, he said, not only exploited the bauxite resources of IBA member countries, but 'have even reached the position to claim certain extra-territorial rights and raise themselves above the domestic law and the jurisprudence of the host countries.'"

Hong Kong Cable

Hong Kong Cable is a monthly newsletter publication, reporting progress in industrial development, investment and trade affecting Hong Kong. Examples of the items reported are as follows.

HONG KONG ADVANTAGES: "A recent survey by the American Chamber of Commerce in Hong Kong confirmed the fact that U. S. companies enjoy doing business in the Colony . . . . The major reason cited by the various companies in locating in Hong Kong was the edge that the Colony has over other Southeast Asian countries as the leading communications center and travel cross-roads."

IMPORTANCE OF INDUSTRY: According to Horace Knight, Hong Kong's Assistant Commissioner of Labor, industry is not an option for the Colony, it is indispensable. Mr. Knight points out that industry in an economic sense contributes an increasingly higher percentage toward Hong Kong's gross domestic product while socially it represents the biggest employer. In addition, he feels that industry will never become obsolete nor will it ever be replaced by any other field of economic activity.

TRADE EXPANSION: "According to the latest provisional trade figures released by the Hong Kong Government, the Colony's exports during the first nine months of 1974 jumped 30% over the same period a year earlier reaching $3.5 billion. Moreover, imports also rose by 34% to $5.2 billion while re-exports posted a 22% gain amounting to $1.2 billion."

Memorandum

On behalf of the Indian Sugar Industry Export Corporation, Ltd., Mr. N. David Palmeter of Daniels & Houlihan submitted a memorandum to the House of Representatives Committee on Agriculture. The memorandum responded to the issues raised by the Committee, in reference to participation under the U. S. Sugar program. Mr. Palmeter described the Indian sugar industry as follows: "it has more acreage under cane than any country in the world; it is the second largest sugar producer among U. S. quota countries; it has more tons of sugar in reserve per ton of 1974 quota than any U. S. supplying country, and has maintained this leadership despite two successive monsoon failures. It is also an industry whose yield data of both cane per acre, and sugar produced per ton of cane, offer realistic hope for improvement."

Mr. Palmeter further stated that the Indian Sugar Industry Export Corporation, Ltd. wished to continue its quota under the U. S. Sugar Act in order to expand production with an assured market for sales. India has demonstrated its determination to continue participating in the sugar program over the past several years when it sold sugar to the U. S., despite higher prices on the world market.

The sugar industry also accounts for an important sector of the Indian economy, inasmuch as it "is the second largest industry in India, after cotton textiles. Millions of cane growers and factory workers throughout India depend upon the industry for their livelihood." Sugar is also essential as an Indian export, in that it is a major earner of the foreign exchange which is needed to import the products and raw materials India needs for development.

Indian Investment Centre, New York	Economic News Digest Miscellaneous Publi- cations	1424-1559  Various

Economic News Digest, a monthly newsletter publication focusing on the Indian economy, was expanded in August, 1974, from two to four pages. This publication reports information on government policies towards investment, opportunities available, industrial development, and other achievements in the development of the Indian economy. Typical of the items reported in Economic News Digest are the following.

INDUSTRIAL FORECAST: "The annual report of the Union Ministry of Industrial Development has forecast an improved outlook for industrial activity during Fy 1974-75 than the previous year, despite the oil crisis and the rising cost of imported raw materials. The Ministry bases its optimism on the improvements expected during the year in coal, steel and power output coupled with better availability of agricultural raw materials."

AMBASSADOR'S MESSAGE: Ambassador of India T. N. Kaul wrote a column in the expanded newsletter, which reads in part: "For two decades and a half India has followed the path of democratic development and organized economic growth in an open society. To some the results of that endeavour have fallen short of expectation. But India has emerged after 27 years of independence as the tenth nation in terms of GNP and the eighth industrial power in the world. . .

"The problems of India are the problems of growth; however, about the dynamism of the nation and its economy, there cannot be any doubt. Since 1957 more than 400 U. S. companies have been engaged in business in India, reaching 777 collaboration agreements with Indian firms; and together they have built up both productive and profitable operations . . .

"India welcomes foreign investment for diversification of its industrial base for new technology, and for promoting exports. Apart from providing a large and expanding domestic market and a reservoir of skilled and cheap labour, India offers all reasonable safeguards, including remittance of profits, which have been found attractive by over 400 U. S. companies."

FREE TRADE ZONE: The Kandla Free Trade Zone (KAFTZ), established "with a view to promote exports and to bring about fuller utilization of the facilities at the Kandla Port," has experienced steady growth since its 1965 beginning. In addition to the availability of facilities and incentives extended to industries established in other Indian locations relating to taxes, imports of raw materials and machinery, etc., numerous other concessions have been made for industries set up in the Kandla Free Trade Zone.

The Indian Government also permits overseas investors to establish industries which are wholly foreign owned in the KAFTZ, and provides a special package of incentives for them.

U. S. - INDIA AGREEMENT: "India and the United States have signed an agreement for establishing a joint Commission to explore the possibilities of fostering mutually advantageous cooperation between them in three areas: economic and commercial, scientific and technological, educational and cultural affairs. The agreement . . . says this development springs from a common desire to strengthen further the friendly relations between the two countries."

The Indian Investment Centre also disseminated a review entitled India 73, taken from Economic News Digest, and a set of guidelines for the administration of the 1973 Foreign Exchange Regulation Act.

Arab Information Center	Palestine Digest	4000
	Newsletter	4000
	Pamphlets, Brochures	Various

The Arab Information Center disseminated numerous publications throughout 1974 on behalf of The League of Arab States, an organization of the member states of Algeria, Bahrain, Egypt, Iraq, Jordan, Kuwait, Lebanon, Libya, Mauritania, Morocco, Oman, People's Yemen, Qatar, Saudi Arabia, Somalia, Sudan, Syria, Tunisia, United Arab Emirates and Yemen. The information disseminated was almost entirely concerned with developments in the Middle East between the Arab states and Israel.

Palestine Digest is a monthly publication which consists of reprinted news articles and editorials from such publications as the Washington Post, The New York Times, Christian Science Monitor, Wall Street Journal and Jerusalem Post. These articles reported on such issues as the conditions necessary for a lasting solution to the problems in the Middle East, the oil embargo imposed by Arab nations and its economic effects, outbreaks of terrorism, President Nixon's trip to the Middle East and the plight of Palestinian refugees.

In December, 1974, Arab Information Center published the first issue of Arab Report, a new bi-weekly newsletter. This first issue of the newsletter reported on Palestine Liberation Organization leader Yasir Arafat's address before the United Nations, and "the authority of the PLO as the sole representative of the Palestinian people." Arab Report criticizes Israel's characterization of the PLO as "terrorists", and charges that Israel itself has conducted "countless acts of terror against civilians in occupied Palestine," and has "carried its campaign of terror against the Arab people across its borders to hit Arab villages, schools, towns, and factories in Lebanon, Jordan, Syria and Egypt." Defending his organization against the terrorist charges, Arafat said: "The difference between the revolutionary and the terrorist lies in the reason for which each fights. For whoever stands by a just cause and fights for the freedom and liberation of his land from the invaders, the settlers and the colonialists cannot, possibly be called terrorist . . . "

The Arab - Israeli Conflict A Brief Presentation is one of the numerous pamphlets disseminated by the Arab Information Center. This pamphlet states that the conflict between Arabs and Israelis "has no religious or racial basis . . . . Historically, and until the creation of Israel in 1948, Jews had fared better among Arabs and Muslims than among Europeans. Since the Middle Ages, Arab lands had served as refuge for persecuted Jews." The origins of the conflict, according to this pamphlet, can be traced to 1897 when, during the first World Zionist Congress, "Palestine was marked for Jewish colonization. Mindless of the centuries-old Arab settlement and ownership of Palestine, the Zionists launched the slogan 'A land without people for a people without land.'" The pamphlet then provides a short summary of developments in the Middle East from the Balfour Declaration of 1917 through the October 1973 war. Blaming the continuing unrest in the area on Israeli aggression, and its U. S. supporters, the pamphlet concludes as follows: "Real security depends on living in peace with one's neighbor. A prerequisite for such a condition, in reference to the Middle East, is the complete withdrawal of Israel from occupied Arab territory, which the Arabs demand, and the realization of the legitimate rights of the Palestinian people. Only then can real peace be achieved in the Middle East."

Another of the Arab Information Center's pamphlets, entitled The Ruthless Vengeance Israel's Attack on Refugee Camps In Lebanon, reports Israel's reaction to the death of 20 school children at Maalot, where the children were being held hostage by three Palestinian guerrillas. The pamphlet charges that Israel conducted a "savage bombing campaign" which killed and wounded unarmed Palestinian refugees and civilians, destroyed homes, schools and hospitals. The pamphlet also criticized the American press and others who expressed a sense of outrage over the Maalot incident, but were "silent or weak" when Arabs and Palestinians were the victims. "The contradiction in moral response between the death of Israeli children and the death of Arab children cannot be justified. The terrorism conducted by the Israeli government, directed at Palestinian civilians, including children, is as abhorrent, if not more so, than individual terrorism directed at Israeli civilians. Israeli acts of terrorism, beyond any reasonable retaliation, are performed by a responsible state, not by a minority dispossessed of their land and national existence."

The following are among the numerous other pamphlets disseminated by the Arab Information Center:

Arab Heritage of Western Civilization
Facts of Israeli Expansion
Significance of Arab Oil
Palestine Illustrated
U. S. and the Suez Canal
Arab - Israeli Conflict
Jewish Critics of Zionism

In January, 1974, Mr. Demo submitted a letter to the Administrator, Federal Energy Office, on behalf of the International Committee of Passenger Lines, an organization of "seventeen foreign steamship passenger lines . . . which operate regular services out of ports on the Atlantic and Pacific coasts of the U. S."

Mr. Demo expressed the Committee's concern that the passenger steamship industry was the victim of "unwarranted discrimination" under recently published regulations which singled out the industry for exclusion from fuel allocations. He noted that steps had been taken to conserve fuel, that the passenger steamships industry "makes a very substantial contribution to the American economy amounting to several hundred million dollars annually," that passengers who would ordinarily travel by steamship would simply turn to air travel, and that "most of the residual fuel oil taken at U. S. ports was bonded fuel oil of foreign origin."

Mr. Demo also stated that the Committee recognizes "that the current emergency requires sacrifice by all sectors of the American economy," and that the industry has taken steps to conserve energy. "However, they submit that they, and the many other businesses related to them, should be given a fair chance to survive," and urge the FEO to "eliminate the exception of passenger cruise vessels from the specific priorities which that Section (of the regulations) affords to commercial shipping generally and which the regulations elsewhere provide for all other transportation modes."

Periodically issued radio scripts report developments within the European Economic Community. One of the scripts entitled "Europe's 'Unity' Crisis", reports that EEC president Ortolli said the energy crisis threatened to reveal European Unity as a "fairweather phenomenon" which could not withstand any test. Ortolli charged that member nations' doubts on the effectiveness of union, and recent nationalistic politics have been responsible for EEC weaknesses, such as the "failure to set up the European Development Fund; failure to bring about the second stage of economic and monetary union; and failure to achieve a common Mediterranean policy." He also stated that no European nation alone could exercise as much influence as a united Europe.

Other radio scripts reported on the following topics, as reflected by their titles: "Europe's Minority Governments"; "China Courts the Common Market"; "Major U. S. - Europe Trade Accord"; "Europe and Latin America"; "Europe and Monetary Reform"; "Britain Challenges the Common Market"; and "Ortolli Speaks On U. S. - E. C. Crisis".

Press releases issued throughout 1974 for the most part reported the EEC's schedule of events, and the activities of EEC officials visiting in the U. S.

Background Note, another publication of the European Community Information Service designed to report developments in the European Economic Community, contains information such as the following.

EAST-WEST TRADE: "The Eastern countries now hope to intensify their imports of capital goods and know-how from the West, in order to bridge their technological gap. To this end, they are taking advantage of the present detente, and in some ways furthering it so as to enable themselves to attain their economic objectives . . . . Formerly their trade with the West was considered of problematical value, limited to short-term transactions and thus of only small scope. Now, however, the improved political atmosphere makes it possible for them to think of foreign contributions to long-term projects; and, in some industries, the foreign contribution is regarded as a decisive factor."

CHINA AND THE EC: "China's growing interest in the European Community and its increased contact with EC and national officials in recent years raises the possibility of official Chinese recognition of the Community.

"China already has strong commercial ties with the Community whose nine member states form its second largest trading partner . . . .

"Chinese diplomacy has considerably modified its line on the Community since 1971. In 1969 the Community was seen as the 'center of imperialist contradictions' and described as an 'American machination' designed to consolidate Washington's interests. By 1971, the Common Market had become 'a balancing factor between the great powers.' China now seems to favor the emergence of a strong European federation politically independent of the Soviet Union and the United States. 'America and Russia are not to be trusted,' Chinese Premier Chou En-lai told visiting Dutch parliamentarians in mid-1973 'Europe must build up her own strength.'"

European Community is a monthly magazine publication which reports developments within the European Economic Community, the Community's relations with other nations, and international developments which affect the Community as a whole, or one of its member nations. An article entitled "The 'Chunnel'" reported that France and England agreed to construction of a tunnel under the English Channel which would link the two countries by rail. "Whither Multinationals" reports the Community is studying the development of a common policy towards the ever increasing number of multi-national corporations which are forming. "State of the Community" reveals that the EC Commission's study of Community development has characterized the Community's current condition as being in a crisis stage, due to its failure to settle on common policies in such areas as energy, regional development, and economic and monetary union. "EC Stake in Cyprus Crisis" explains the agreements which the Community has with all the nations involved in the crisis - Greece, Turkey, and Cyprus itself.

European Community News is a weekly newsletter publication reporting matters of interest to the European Economic Community, such as the following:

EUROPEAN COOPERATION GROUPING: "Creation of the European Cooperation Grouping, a new legal entity designed to encourage Community business enterprises of all sizes to coordinate some of their activities for mutual benefit, has been proposed to the Council of Ministers by the Commission. The new grouping, designed to operate within the bounds of EC competition rules, would permit temporary combinations of business interests under flexible procedures which would be easily adaptable to prevailing trends in the economic situation."

EC ALTERNATIVE: "'The Community has usually only advanced because of crisis,' Commissioner Albert Borschette told the International Chamber of Commerce in Frankfurt, Germany, on March 22, 1974. He pointed out three main reasons for the current crisis: the priority of national interests over Europe; the lack of faith in Europe, and the fact that Europeans are now running into the issue of national sovereignty in the fields of monetary and foreign policies. Borschette also stressed the need to renovate the EC's institutions so that the work of creating a European Union can begin by 1980. For the future, the will of Europe's people to form a united Europe is established, he said, adding: 'The European countries have no alternative to Europe.'"

U. S. ISOLATIONISM: "Jens-Otto Krag, head of the EC delegation in Washington, has told a Council of Foreign Relations lunch in New York that American isolationism, not

U. S. domination, is the main threat to U. S. - European relations. He said the danger was of 'an isolated United States and a European policy which does not recognize the necessity of Atlantic solidarity. Such a European policy would strengthen isolationistic forces in this country and threaten the foundation of a policy which has maintained the peace and freedom of the Western world for 25 years.'

PORTUGAL: "By promising democracy in Portugal, Lisbon's April 25 military revolution opens up the prospect of closer links between that country and the European Community.

"Like other European Free Trade Association (EFTA) countries, Portugal has a free trade agreement with the Common Market; but, as with Spain, Portugal's dictatorship has precluded Portugal from consideration in the EC. A democratic, multiparty Portugal might conceivably seek membership and be considered acceptable some day."

The ECIS also disseminated Newsfeature, an information publication reporting developments and problems in Europe, which is sent to newspaper and magazine editors.

Other publications, including The European Community At A Glance, A Selective Study Guide to the European Communities, and European Community the Facts, were also disseminated.

Two members of the law firm Patton, Boggs and Blow appeared before the Committee on Agriculture, U. S. House of Representatives, on March 8, 1974, to offer statements on behalf of their clients, the Central American Sugar Council, and its member nations El Salvador, Guatemala, Honduras and Nicaragua. The two asked that the Committee grant these nations quotas under the proposed extension of the Sugar Act. Registrants stated that the Central American Sugar Council nations wished to continue their participation in the U. S. sugar program because it provides an "assured, stable market," thereby enabling the sugar growing nations "to make long-range production and marketing plans, and most importantly, . . . to expand its sugar industry with the assurance that it can do so without suffering devastating losses at some future date."

Registrants provided the Committee with printed statements prepared on behalf of the individual nations of the Central American Sugar Council, which supported their requests for quotas under the Sugar Act.

NICARAGUA: In support of Nicaragua's request for an increased quota under the proposed Sugar Act extension, Patton, Boggs & Blow report that the sugar industry of Nicaragua has steadily grown larger and more efficient. In addition to being an important source of employment and providing extensive benefits for its employees through social security, medical benefits, housing programs, and educational facilities, the sugar industry in Nicaragua further assists the community at large through contributions to various charitable institutions such as orphanages and hospitals. Continued growth of the sugar industry, however, is dependent upon assurances of a stable market, as provided under the U. S. Sugar Act quota system. To further support the Nicaraguan request, the registrant noted the following: Nicaragua has been a consistent supporter of the U. S. in world affairs; Nicaragua has pledged to fulfill its U. S. quota, even when higher prices prevail on the world market; Nicaragua, an important consumer of U. S. exports, has a negative balance of trade; an increased quota will further the growth and development of the Central American Common Market.

HONDURAS: Honduras consistently met its quota obligations to the U. S. until 1973, when drought conditions in that country had become so severe that Honduras was forced to import sugar to meet its own needs. In 1974 sugar production had still not fully recovered from the drought, and Honduras was again unable to fulfill its quota. Registrants did note, however, that the other member nations of the Central American Common Market provided whatever sugar Honduras was not able to export, so that the U. S. did not suffer from any shortage. Registrants state that Honduras should be granted a quota "based not on the difficulties caused by the drought, but on its production capacity under normal conditions."

The sugar industry has helped diversify the Honduran economy, which has long suffered from dependence on too few products. Continued expansion of the sugar industry supports the growth of related industries, and serves as an important tax base for the government. Some 10% of the industry's income is paid as tax on sugar used in domestic consumption; import taxes and duties paid on machinery and other materials imported for use by the industry account for additional revenue. Honduras is dependent on agricultural production for nearly half of its gross national product. The nation faces a "pressing need to expand its exportable products, and sugar is an area particularly amenable to achieving a part of that goal."

EL SALVADOR: The government of El Salvador is currently focusing its attention on "The Economic and Social Development Plan, 1973/78", a program by which it hopes to raise the national standard of living. The nation is dependent on agriculture, and the export of agricultural products is essential to earn the foreign exchange needed for the purchase of manufactured products and raw materials abroad. Except for the sugar exported to the U. S., all of El Salvador's other exports "have been subject to wide fluctuations in price which makes economic planning more difficult."

The sugar industry's importance to the overall national economy can be better understood by considering its contributions in the following areas: the industry employs 37,000 workers, who provide support for 200,000 persons; expansion of the sugar industry enables growth in related industries; sugar exports, 6.5% of El Salvador's total exports in 1973, are an important source of foreign exchange; taxation of the industry provides revenue for the government; the industry contributes to the social welfare of the nation through providing housing improvements for workers, educational facilities, medical and dental assistance, etc.

GUATEMALA: Sugar has provided more economic return for the Guatemalan economy than any other agricultural product. The steady expansion of the sugar industry has contributed significantly to national economic growth through creating new jobs, increasing national production and diversifying exports. The industry has experienced steady growth since 1960, when Guatemala was first given a quota under the U. S. sugar program. Registrants listed numerous reasons to support Guatemala's request for a larger quota, including the following: the U. S. market is given priority over the world market; the balance of trade between the U. S. and Guatemala over the past 10 years has consistently favored the U. S.; workers in the sugar industry average better wages than those in other industries, and these wages go to support 10% of the population; Guatemala has a long tradition of support and friendship with the U. S..

Samuel E. Stavisky & Associates, Inc. disseminated a newsletter on behalf of the Pan-American Coffee Bureau throughout 1974, which reported information on coffee production, prices on the world market, and efforts by producer nations to guarantee a stable market. The newsletter consists of reprinted news items and speeches.

An article entitled "Coffee Producers Learn from Oil", datelined Bogota, Colombia, was reprinted from the Miami, Florida publication The Times of The Americas. It reports that the rise in the world market price for coffee was the result of the refusal of industrialized nations to grant a modest price increase requested by the producing nations, thereby causing the 1972 collapse of the International Coffee Agreement (ICA), which had regulated supply and demand in the coffee industry. The ICA collapse was followed in 1973 by a severe frost, which destroyed 40% of Brazil's coffee crop, causing a "serious dent in world coffee reserves," and a dramatic rise in world coffee prices. Coffee consumption is also reported to be on the rise.

The industrialized nations were reportedly unconcerned when ICA collapsed, and characterized warnings that certain commodities, such as coffee, could become scarce as "just another story concocted by the producers to force the price up." The article states that "If the industrialized nations showed little concern over the collapse of ICA, that was because few believed the producing countries capable of maintaining sufficient discipline to hold production down with prices rising. Certainly, these nations had proved themselves incapable of doing so before the agreement's formation in 1962 when wild swings in prices were due to spurts of coffee plantings during a sellers' market with a consequent overproduction and a buyers' market." Now, however, the article states that the coffee producers have learned a lesson. "Like the oil-exporting nations, the governments of the coffee-producing countries have learned that a limited supply will produce higher prices, and they have sufficient experience to apply the discipline to the lesson learned."

Another release on behalf of the Pan-American Coffee Bureau reported excerpts from Colombia's President Afonso Lopez Michelsen's speech to the Annual Coffee Congress, held in Bogota, Colombia. The President spoke on the establishment of an agreement between the major coffee producers which will "control international supplies by the coffee-exporting countries", set quarterly export quotas, and conduct a quarterly review to assure that each nation is living up to its commitment. The agreement, referred to as a "framework for the defense of coffee prices," is a cooperative effort by Colombia, Brazil, Mexico, and Venezuela. In addition, these four plan to "lend their needed economic support to the Central American countries, so that these producers can fulfill their coffee retention commitments. This financial support would prevent precipitate sales and the scramble to undersell."

The Colombian President said that the goal of the agreement is not to "provoke an artificial increase in prices by creating a temporary shortage. We are not seeking to create a price-raising mechanism, against which our traditional customers could justifiably protest. Our aspiration always has been, and continues to be, to seek the stabilization of prices at remunerative levels; and never has been to withhold from the market the regular flow of coffee for purposes of mere speculation.

. . . . The Colombian opinion is that it is better to have an equitable pact which guarantees stability through the years, for the mutual benefit of producers and consumers, than to wait around, hoping for a frost, a strike, a civil war or some other unforeseen element which might produce a temporary windfall.

"It is for this reason that Colombia regrets the reluctance of the United States, the largest coffee consumer in the world, to adopt a more receptive attitude and more constructive steps toward reestablishing a producer-consumer agreement which, as in previous years, will stabilize the world coffee market."

Mr. Sandlund submitted letters to the Senate and the House of Representatives on behalf of the Council of European and Japanese National Shipowners' Associations (CENSA). The Council is composed of "the National Shipowners' Associations of Belgium, Denmark, Finland, France, Federal Republic of Germany, Greece, Italy, Japan, The Netherlands, Norway, Spain, Sweden, and the United Kingdom, and individual liner operators/ container consortia from most of those countries." Letters to both the Senate and the House expressed CENSA's objections to provisions in S.2753 and H.R. 6637 and 7635, which would "require the further regulation of international freight rates and carriers in an unnecessary and undesirable manner."

A letter to the members and counsel of the Senate Committee on Commerce expressed CENSA's views on proposed bill S.2576: Non-national Carrier Rate Regulation. An attached statement suggests that the Committee consider a system of association used by shippers outside the U. S. which has been very successful in creating a stability often lacking in the U. S.

A statement sent to the House Committee on Merchant Marine and Fisheries, commenting on H.R. 12428 and 12429 proposes four goals which should be sought by legislation concerning intermodal transportation, and concludes that the proposed bills "represent a constructive endeavor to rationalize the regulation of this rather new and complicated sphere of transportation."

Martin S. Weiss, doing business as the D. C. Occupational & Training Center, disseminates EFTA Bulletin on behalf of the European Free Trade Association (EFTA). EFTA member states are Austria, Finland, Iceland, Norway, Portugal, Sweden, Switzerland and Liechtenstein. The EFTA Bulletin reports developments within the Association, on exports of each member nation, and the common problems faced by the Association members. An article entitled "Some Reflections on EFTA" reports that EFTA was first organized in 1960, and that by 1973 had achieved its two major objectives: the first, industrial free trade, was established with the founding of the Association in 1960; and the second, Free Trade Agreements with the European Economic Community, was instituted in 1973.

EFTA's economic achievements include the "systematic abolition of trade barriers - and not only tariffs and quota restrictions. Many other non-tariff barriers were also tackled in EFTA: restrictive business practices, rights of establishment, government aids, the problem of differing national standards, and freedom of competition for the large purchases made by governments and government agencies." These trade agreements contributed to a tremendous increase in trade between EFTA nations, and between EFTA and European Economic Community (EEC) nations.

The EFTA, unlike the EEC, concerns trading arrangements only, and does not concern the politics of any nation. "EFTA provided a means by which its participating countries pooled their sovereignty only insofar as trade between them was concerned. They retained control over their trade policy concerning all outside countries by adopting the free trade area formula rather than the customs union of the Rome Treaty."

This article also states that beyond the Association's function in the area of trade, "EFTA has provided a useful consultation forum for wider matters than its own internal activities. It is clear that there is no scarcity of problems which the EFTA countries could usefully discuss together in the future. The general EFTA belief is that only continuing international co-operation on the widest possible level can arrive at solutions to the major economic problems of our times - inflation, the energy crisis, the world monetary system, the environment. Informal consultation in EFTA can prepare its participating countries for negotiation on wider levels."

The Association does not plan to admit any new member nations or establish associations with other states in the foreseeable future, although it does maintain cordial relations with nations outside the Association.

Other articles in EFTA Bulletin during 1974 included: "Finland's trade policy: freeing trade with East and West"; "Iceland: a new fishing story"; "Ministerial Meeting of EFTA Councils"; EFTA and the elimination of technical obstacles to trade"; "Traditional Portuguese export lines still thriving"; "Balance of payments trends in the EFTA countries".

Ireland Industry News is a monthly newsletter publication which reports developments in the fields of business, industry and the economy. Short news items comprising the publication included: "The EEC: Ireland's First Anniversary"; "Ireland Launches Middle East Export Campaign"; "New Investments Soar"; "Irish Mining"; and "Bank of Ireland Opens in Chicago".

Why Companies Locate Manufacturing Plants In Ireland, a brochure disseminated by the Industrial Development Authority - Ireland (IDA), reports that IDA "is a government agency that has been established to promote the industrial development of Ireland. Among its prime objectives is encouraging foreign manufacturers to establish export-oriented, manufacturing plants in Ireland. To achieve this goal IDA has been given broad decision-making powers. It has the authority to make grants toward fixed assets and employee training programs; to guarantee loans and subsidize interest on loans; to build facilities for lease or purchase and to operate industrial parks. IDA makes decisions with a minimum delay, helping industrialists to get into production quickly."

The brochure further reports that Ireland "has become the most attractive investment spot in Europe" for many industrialists, because of "trade, financial and tax advantages that are unequalled anywhere else in Europe." These advantages include: "progressive duty free access to the European Economic Community (EEC), a market of 260 million people; immediate duty-free access to the British market of 60 million people; fifteen years tax exemption from export profits and partial exemption for the remaining years up to 1990; complete freedom to transfer profits, capital or dividends from Ireland; non-repayable cash grants of up to 50% toward new fixed assets and of up to 100% toward labor training; a plentiful supply of educated, productive and adaptable workers; a wide choice of industrial sites and parks with ready-to-occupy factories; an efficient transportation system with modern facilities for road, air and sea travel to major European cities."

Additional brochures, mailed as a package, included Facts Industrial Ireland Today, Republic of Ireland Common Market Gateway, and Republic of Ireland Taxation.

IDA also placed numerous advertisements inviting investment in Ireland in such publications as Business Week, the Wall Street Journal, Fortune, Industry Week and Electronic News.

ISRAEL

World Zionist Organi- zation, American Section, Inc.	Press Releases The Israel Digest	120 8000

Numerous press releases issued by the World Zionist Organization, American Section, Inc. announced the departure of students and teachers from the U. S. to study in Israel. Other press releases report day to day activities of the World Zionist Organization - American Section, Inc. and statements of the organization's Chairman, Mrs. Charlotte Jacobson. In April, Mrs. Jacobson condemned the attack by three Arab terrorists on Israeli civilians, and called on all governments of the world to "'make it clear that such inhuman attacks will no longer be tolerated.' Mrs. Jacobson also called upon the government of Lebanon, which has permitted the terrorists to operate within their borders, to take immediate action to put an end to such outrages or be prepared to accept the responsibility for them."

The Israel Digest is a bi-weekly newspaper publication of the World Zionist Organization, which reports "news of Israel - direct from Israel." An article entitled "Come to Israel and Build the Land - Aliyah is Our Life - blood" was an appeal to Jewish people around the world to immigrate to Israel, by the Acting Head of the World Zionist Executive.

"Today, more than ever, Israel needs Jews who will come here on aliyah and join us - with their talent, energy, professional skills, experience and devotion - in building a free Jewish society, a commonwealth founded on values and deeds that attract every Jew, wherever he may be.

". . . We believe that with the aid of the Jewish people we can overcome every hardship and obstacle and build a strong and secure Jewish State . . . . Immigration to Israel is an inner need for young Jews searching for challenges, for Jewish communities seeking closer bonds with Israel, for Jewish families wishing their sons to be in the ranks of those building the State.

"Therefore, Israel today appeals to Jewish millions everywhere: Let all those whose hearts are tuned to the call of Jewish history and who are prepared to back Israel without fear of hesitation - let them and their families immigrate to Israel now!"

"Massacre of Women and Children in Kiryat Shmona" reports on the Arab terrorists' assault on the town of Kiryat Shmona, in which 18 persons were killed. The Israel Digest states that such actions, the murder of women, children and civilians, destroyed the terrorists' claims to be a national liberation movement. "Rather, they draw their inspiration from the 'Black Hundreds' of imperialist Czarist Russia, from the Arab gangs who carried out their massacres in Hebron and in the Old City of Jerusalem in British Mandatory days, from the Hitlerist extermination units. Their common bond was a thirst for blood brought on by a blind hatred of the Jews. This is the true image of those whom the haters of the State of Israel, and the opponents of the Jewish revival movement, purport to present to the world as freedom fighters."

After the attack on Kiryat Shmona, The Israel Digest states that the terrorists were not condemned by the Arab nations. "All the Arab press, including that in the so-called 'moderate countries,' praised 'the heroic fighters' who acted in keeping with the terms of the 'Cairo Convention' which allows the terrorists a free hand to attack Israel with the sole reservation that they 'do not endanger the countries that have common frontiers with Israel.' This refers to Lebanon which in actual fact has removed all control of the frontier region, and has placed the whole of the southern part of the country at the disposal of the terrorist gangs, who carry out their dastardly work with the blessing and inspiration of the Arab states which offer them both moral and generous monetary support."

The article "Terrorists Invited to the U. N." describes Israeli reaction to a U. N. vote granting observer status to the Palestine Liberation Organization. Israel's representative at the U. N., Yosef Tekoah, spoke against the proposal, saying that "the PLO was never anything but a mere instrument of those who have been conducting a campaign of savage atrocities, aimed explicitly at the destruction of Israel.'

"It represents only itself, namely, the approximately 10,000 murderers trained and paid for the slaughter of innocent human beings. To equate them with the Palestinian community is to do grave injustice to the latter, Tekoah said.

"The PLO, Tekoah continued, was anti-liberation. It ignored the existence of an independent Palestinian Arab State of Jordan and rejected the premise that if there were Palestinian needs which had not yet been fully satisfied, they could be dealt with in negotiations between Israel and the Palestinian Arab State."

JAMAICA

A. F. Sabo Associates,      Press Releases      Various Public Relations

A. F. Sabo Associates disseminated numerous releases on behalf of the Government of Jamaica, concerned exclusively with the Jamaican policy towards their bauxite reserves, and their plans as to how this resource should be exploited. The Government of Prime Minister Michael Manley initiated negotiations with the foreign owned bauxite and alumina companies in Jamaica, with a goal of structuring a partnership between the companies and the Government, so that Jamaica would earn a fair return from her natural resources.

One of the releases reprinted a 1972 speech delivered by Prime Minister Manley to the U. N. General Assembly. At that time, Mr. Manley stated that the "widening gap (between wealthy and poor) nations will never be closed by economic aid alone, for the simple reason that the established system of economic relations between developed and developing nations works in the opposite direction. Under the established system--which has thus far been singularly resistant to change--the lion's share of the gains from international trade and investment from the extraction, conversion and sale of the world's raw materials accrues to those who command supplies of capital and technical know-how, and these are the developed nations."

Mr. Manley's speech also suggested a plan "to reconstruct the basis on which the gains arising from the exploitation of these (natural) resources are shared." He said: "Let the resources continue in our ownership from the point of extraction to the final sale of the processed product. Let the agreements of the future cover, not the sale of our resources to developed countries but the payments which shall be made to those who supply capital and know-how for their services in the process of conversion."

Mr. Manley and other Jamaican Government officials reiterated this proposal throughout 1974.

A March release reported on the formation of the International Bauxite Association (I.B.A.), an "inter-governmental association of bauxite producing countries," designed to serve as a vehicle for the "expression of solidarity among the bauxite producing countries and of their determination to cooperate with each other to safeguard their common interests." Government Ministers from Australia, Guinea, Guyana, Jamaica, Sierra Leone, Surinam and Yugoslavia participated in the conference at which I.B.A. was organized. The Ministers "expressed their intention to secure on behalf of their peoples fair and equitable returns from the exploitation of their bauxite resources in order to promote their social and economic development."

In an address to the Jamaican Parliament, Prime Minister Manley, characterizing I.B.A. as a "response to the improper and disproportionate power of the multi-national corporations," defended I.B.A.'s purpose and Jamaica's proposal for new royalty and production levies on bauxite. He stated: "I have heard nonsense that the Jamaican proposals regarding bauxite would send the price of aluminum ingot up by two cents a pound, which is about five percent on top of the current price of aluminum pig. Who in North America asked us permission or what we thought when they increased the price of wheat by 200%? Who cared for us when the price of soy beans went up by 238%? Who cared when the basic price of steel, upon which we depend, went up by 90%? Who cares when we have to pay more for a tractor, an automobile or food? Nobody cares. Yet, when we say we want a return on our bauxite that the companies can finance out of their profits, we hear nonsense about cartelization and the improper use of economic power."

Other releases reported that joint aluminum smelters would be set up by the Governments of Jamaica, Guyana and Trinidad and Tobago; that Mexico and Jamaica would cooperate in establishing a multinational aluminum corporation; and that the Jamaican Government and the Kaiser Aluminum Corporation had reached an agreement whereby the Government would purchase 51% of Kaiser's bauxite mining interests in Jamaica, and some 40,000 acres of Jamaican land owned by Kaiser.

The Jamaica Industrial Development Corporation (JIDC), which operates as a part of the Jamaican Ministry of Trade and Industry, assists in administering industrial incentive laws and disseminates information designed to promote Jamaica as an industrial location. JIDC Information Series consists of eight pamphlets, each providing information of interest to prospective investors, entitled: Opportunity, Incentives, Utilities, Labour, Finance, Duties and Taxes, Establishing, and Living Here. The pamphlet Opportunity states: "For the interested investor, the JIDC conducts comprehensive economic research into market surveys, tariffs, shipping costs and taxes. It assists in the selection of factory sites. The JIDC leads the investor step-by-step through the processes involved from first interest to establishment and operation of a new plant and continues to provide advice and assistance once the plant has been established."

JIDC also disseminated copies of an article entitled "Jamaica Seeking Transshipment Role In Caribbean Container Movements", reprinted from Container News. This article reported on the development of a 74 acre site located adjacent to the Kingston docks, which will include a $45 million container complex, "facilities for free port manufacturing and distribution, . . . (and) terminals for trans-shipment of cargo to other destinations." These facilities are designed to assure Jamaica of "total trade flexibility."

Other disseminations by JIDC included Jamaica - Island of Industrial Opportunity and Economic Survey - 1972, which along with JIDC Information Series were also disseminated in 1973, and a letter to tool and die manufacturers in the U. S. suggesting that their product could be produced at a lower cost in Jamaica.

JIDC News Review, a monthly newsletter publication disseminated by Ketchum, MacLeod & Grove, Inc., on behalf of the Jamaica Industrial Development Corporation (JIDC), reports news of industrial opportunities, advancements and other developments affecting industry and manufacturing in Jamaica. Items of interest during 1974 included a new program of export incentives, construction of a $330,000 manufacturing complex in the Kingston Industrial Estate, and the promotion of the Kingston Free Zone and related dock facilities.

Ketchum, MacLeod & Grove, Inc. also disseminated press releases for JIDC, one of which reported on a speech by JIDC head Wesley A. Wainwright to the Jamaica - America Chamber of Commerce in New York. Mr. Wainwright said that new approaches to industrialization in Jamaica were necessary to better serve the needs of the nation's economy and people. New areas to be emphasized include: the manufacture or production of items which use locally available raw materials; the development of export markets as destinations for locally manufactured products; and the development of "import replacements" to ease "the strain on Jamaica's balance of payment problems."

Mr. Wainwright further stated that "'we are convinced Jamaica's industrial potential is largely untapped and that there are vast areas in which U. S. private investment capital and technology can work in Jamaica for the mutual benefit of the investors and the country.'" He urged his audience to consider developing industrial projects which 'fit in with Jamaica's needs, as well as your own objectives,' pointing out the fact the country's government 'as a deliberate policy, welcomes and seeks out overseas investment capital.'"

Another press release explained the Jamaican program entitled "Sites and Services", which provides for the construction of low-cost homes adjacent to industrial estates, where the residents would be employed. The goal of the program is to "move people out of hard-core poverty pockets and lifestyles, and into productive, total-environment communities."

Other press releases reported the opening or formation of new industrial concerns.

Donald Lerch & Co., Inc. disseminated Spring and Fall issues of the U. S. - Japan Agricultural Trade Newsletter on behalf of the U. S. - Japan Trade Council. The Newsletter reports on agricultural developments in the U. S. and Japan, and trade needs and arrangements. One item, entitled "Interdependency and the Future" states: "The fuel energy crisis, and its influence on the price of food, is beginning to have substantial effects upon the lives of individual Americans and Japanese . . . ."

"The Japanese have been taught an important lesson - that the world market for natural resources is no longer a buyer's market, as it has been for so long. Japanese industry will have to pay higher prices for its imported energy and natural resources, virtually none of which are indigenous to the Japanese islands . . . ."

"Higher oil prices and shorter supplies of energy and resources will be additional burdens Japan must face as it moves ahead with its newly adopted long-range national objective of raising the quality of life for its citizens. . . ."

"How soon demand for food and other items returns to the economic growth trend line depends largely upon restoration of consumer buying power. This in turn relates to control of inflation and of the cost of raw materials. Since these problems are global in scale, they are shared by all nations."

Focus Japan and the booklets Financial and Labor Practices in Japan, The Japanese Market In Figures, and Operating A Business In Japan, are identical to the publications disseminated by the Japan Trade Center.

The Japan Trade Center / L.A. Newsletter contained such items as "Need for Import/Export Balance Opens Cooperative Era in Japan", "Energy Crisis Alters Japanese Lifestyles; More Changes Likely", and "Information Services Available from Japan Trade Center in Los Angeles". A message from Director Akira Yasui of the Los Angeles office, Japan Trade Center, says in part: "Japan today is described as the world's most rapidly changing society. This is unquestionably true. But the widely heralded economic and social evolution in Japan is directly and inexorably linked to equally dramatic changes going on simultaneously throughout the world.

" . . . Japan is rapidly adjusting in her own style to the 20th Century need for ever-greater cooperation and interaction between the world's economic and political powers - as well as between the developed and developing nations.

"Modern-day Japan is characterized by a strong willingness to cooperate and interact with the rest of the world community in pure-business and economic as well as in cultural terms. Rapid changes in Japan over the past few years symbolize this willingness; at the same time they signal the opening of a great new era in Japan's relationships with the free world.

" . . . Japan values that relationship and will never again return to the export dominance she attained in the 1960's. It is now thoroughly understood at the highest levels of government and business that a policy of promoting balanced two way trade with world partners is Japan's best hope for continued growth, prosperity, and a higher quality of life for her 109 million people.

"To make more two-way trade and investment opportunities a reality, we have already dismantled virtually all of the former barriers and government regulations controlling imports and foreign financial involvement in the Japanese economy."

Japan Trade Center disseminates a monthly magazine, Focus Japan, which until May, 1974, had been entitled Trade and Industry of Japan. Designed to inform readers on "economic and trade issues and trends of vital importance to observers of the Japanese economic scene," Focus Japan expanded this coverage to include articles on governmental policies, book reviews, and Japanese society outside the business world. The following titles are representative of articles printed in Trade and Industry of Japan and Focus Japan: "Good Products and Salesmen Give Nissan Leading Place", "New Energy Technology Development Mapped Out for Next Two Decades", "Government Presents Outlook For This Year's Economy", "Overseas Investments Get A Second Look", "Stunning Blow to Heavy Machinery Industry", and "Agricultural Imports Make Sharp Gains".

The Japan Trade Center also disseminated several booklets, part of the Japan External Trade Organization's (JETRO) Business Information Series and Marketing Series. One of these booklets, The Japanese Market in Figures - A Handbook of Basic Marketing Information, is designed to "fulfill a need for a selected body of data which will introduce potential exporters to the basic features of the Japanese market," and to identify additional sources of information.

Other booklets of the JETRO series disseminated include Operating A Business in Japan, Japan's Import and Marketing Regulations, and Understanding the Japanese - If That's Possible. Japan Trade Center also disseminated Japan and the American West Coast, a pamphlet outlining the volume of trade and social relations between Japan and the Western states; Trans-Pacific Trade Winds, a new newsletter publication reporting trade developments; and U. The Public Relations Board, Inc. disseminated Japan Tradeletter Hotline, a ten times a year newsletter publication, on behalf of the Japan Trade Center. The newsletter focused mainly on economic matters, as indicated below.

ARAB INVESTMENTS IN JAPAN: "Nomura Securities Co. reports that an Arab bank has placed an order for 'several hundreds of thousands of shares' of Japanese stock through an account opened with the firm. Oil revenues in the Arab countries are estimated to reach $50 to $60 billion in 1974. This amount of capital is causing considerable interest among Japanese stockbrokers. One analyst said that if five percent of these dollars were invested in Japan, the value of such investments would amount to as much as $3 billion and would have a 'major effect on the pricing of stocks and bonds.'"

CHINA TRADE: "Japan's trade with China showed a two-fold increase in 1973, reaching $2.0 billion. Exports to China climbed 71.0 percent to $1.0 billion, while imports from China increased 98.3 percent to $.97 billion. While total trade increased, Japan's export margin declined $50.5 million in 1973 to $67.3 million. This decline is seen as being a solution to the Japan - China 'trade balance problem' and provides a necessary precondition for further expansion of bi-lateral trade. Japanese exports to China were lead by machinery and equipment reflecting increased Chinese interest in investment for industrial development. Imports from China grew in nearly all areas, with textile products, particularly, raw silk, accounting for 44 percent of the total."

OIL IMPORTS: "The Ministry of Finance (MOF) is seeking to curb Japan's crude oil imports in the face of increased costs now in effect that threaten Japan's balance of payments position in the coming year. Reportedly, the adoption of an import quota system is not likely, but MOF officials are considering a ceiling on the nation's total amount of crude imports for fiscal 1974. Continuation of the current program for regulating total demand for goods and services is also likely. Forecasts for 1974 include a total crude oil bill of $18 billion, which would have a direct and damaging effect on Japan's present trade account surplus."

ANTIRECESSION CARTELS - "Formation of antirecession cartels, through which Japanese industries hardest hit by the nation's raging inflation may cooperate to lessen the impact of the recession upon them, has been approved by MITI, as long as such cartels are formed for short periods only and as long as commodity shortages do not occur."

The Public Relations Board, Inc. also disseminated U. S. / Japan Outlook, which is sub-titled "A digest of American Views of Japan". All but one of the articles in this publication are written by Americans about Japanese trade policies, business practices or social customs. The one exception, an article entitled "How to Enter A Market of 100,000,000", was written by two Japanese businessmen to explain the various options open to foreign investors in Japan, which include: licensing agreements, joint venture formations, and wholly-owned subsidiary establishments. The Japanese prefer to do business with foreigners under a licensing agreement rather than joint ventures, in order to avoid communications problems in the day-to-day management of affairs, and to avoid the misconceptions which foreign businessmen have about the Japanese market. Due to Japanese government restrictions on wholly-owned subsidiaries, the joint venture formation is a major alternative to licensing. The advantage of a joint venture to the foreign businessman is that it enables him "to make use of a Japanese partner's experience and knowledge of the Japanese market as well as an established sales network, existing manufacturing facilities, and qualified managers, salesmen, and engineers."

Japan Trade Center Information Service, a fact sheet disseminated by the registrant on behalf of the Japan Trade Center (JTC), contained information on business surveys, marketing reports and industrial developments. Some of the fact sheets focused on the following topics: "Japanese Measures to Immediately Reduce Oil and Power Consumption"; "Petroleum Price Revision and Strengthening of Price Stabilization Measures"; "Steelmen Must Change Production Methods, Cooperate Closer with Developing Nations"; and "Japan Outlines the 1974 Revision of Tariffs".

Press releases were disseminated by Ruder & Finn, Inc., on behalf of the Japan National Tourist Organization (JNTO), the Japan Trade Center and the Japan External Trade Organization (JETRO). Releases for JNTO reported on hotel construction, tourist spending, recreation areas, and tour exhibits. Information disseminated for JTC and JETRO was related to energy conservation, trade fairs, and a speech delivered to a Tennessee audience by the Director of Public Affairs of the New York JTC, Mr. Kyoshiro Miyata. Mr. Miyata reported that the energy crisis had registered a drastic impact on the Japanese economy, with a prediction for zero percent economic growth in 1974, as opposed to an 8 percent real economic growth registered during the 1973 fiscal year.

Other information disseminated by Ruder & Finn, Inc., included: Tokyo Fair News, which announced the 11th Tokyo International Trade Fair to be held in April, 1975; A JETRO publication, Japan's Industrial and Technical Informations; and items reporting on such topics as the volume of trade from Japan through the port of Houston; Japanese participation in a New York trade show; and background information on the Japan Trade Center.

The film clips and documentaries disseminated by the U. S. - Japan Trade Council depict various aspects of life in Japan, such as the problems resulting from pollution, experiments on a new transportation system using computer run cars, the popularity of soybeans in the Japanese diet, and Americans living in Japan. One of the films, a 32 minute documentary entitled Japan in the 70's . . . What's Happening, informs viewers about life in Japan, and the customs and interests of the Japanese people. It reports that Japan has a population of 108 million, who live in a country which is the size of California; that the Japanese are "wild about baseball," as well as being avid fans of skiing, bowling, judo and horse racing; that Japan is "the world's second largest television market"; that foreign business ventures in Japan have a bright future, and that one foreign controlled electronics firm is "so successful that its taxable income is among the top five among all Japanese corporations"; that Tokyo, the world's largest city, with over 11 million inhabitants, has "major pollution problems"; that buildings in Japan are constructed to withstand the earthquakes which threaten the country; and that Japan is changing its major power source from oil to nuclear energy, in view of the prediction that the country would triple its demand for oil by 1985.

The Trade Council issues periodic information sheets entitled Council Report which contain news on trade and economic developments affecting Japan. In May, 1974, Council Report advised of a speech by Japanese Foreign Minister Masayoshi Ohira to the Japan Society of New York. The Foreign Minister commented on U. S. - Japan relations, and stated that "the interests which bind us together are far more durable than the problems which occasionally divide us." He further noted that Japan was in the process of normalizing relations with the People's Republic of China and the Soviet Union, nations which are "ideological adversaries."

He stated: "Recognizing the futility of mutual annihilation, former antagonists are becoming more pragmatic in dealing with each other. This is healthy, but it does not justify any relaxation of vigilance. Peace still depends on effective deterrence and on continuing cooperation among the democratic powers on political and security affairs." The Foreign Minister denied that Japan was considering "substantial rearmament" or the "development of nuclear weapons" as some have speculated, and affirmed that Japan's "ultimate security . . . will continue to rely on the U. S. deterrent, while limiting the mission of the self-defense forces to protection of its own territory against conventional attack."

Other issues of Council Report focused on the GATT Multilateral Trade Negotiations, Japan's domestic economy, Japan's trade and balance of payments, and the institution of "Resource Diplomacy" by raw material and food exporting nations.

U. S. - Japan Trade Council disseminated numerous press releases on behalf of the Japan Trade Promotion Office, some merely reviewing films or booklets which they also disseminated, and others reporting such items as efforts to control inflation in Japan, the scheduling of the U. S. - Japan Agricultural Trade Conference, and a U. S. trade surplus with Japan. The releases also reported the appearances of Nelson Stitt, Director of the U. S. - Japan Trade Council, before the Foreign Economic Subcommittee of the House Foreign Affairs Committee, and the Senate Finance Committee. Mr. Stitt told the House Committee that Japanese investment in the U. S., far from being "massive", an "invasion" or a "takeover" as characterized by some, in reality "accounts for a negligible percentage of total foreign investment in this country." He also stated that this investment rate "may well decrease sharply because of the dramatic turnaround in Japan's balance of payments over the past year."

U. S. - Japan Trade Council also disseminated numerous booklets and pamphlets for the Japan Trade Promotion Office, including the following: How the Energy Crunch Affects Japan, which reveals the extent of Japan's dependence on imported oil, and the search for an alternative; Another Aspect of Japan details the congested life-style of many Japanese; Japanese and Americans in the New World in a New Age stresses the importance of communications; and Trading With Japan, which promotes Japan as "one of the most attractive export markets in the world today," and maintains that U. S. manufacturers have not yet explored all of the potential markets which exist.

The Korea Trade Office reported the dissemination of numerous trade promotional publications on behalf of the Korea Trade Promotion Corporation. Korea Business contains various articles describing the country's economic atmosphere, new industrial developments, and products imported and exported. An article entitled "Tremendous Development Offers Opportunities to Canadians", reprinted from the Canadian Journal of Commerce, reports that great progress has been made in Korean industry and manufacturing. "It will be only a matter of time until the Republic of Korea becomes one of the world's leading trading nations. The potential is there. The country is making rapid progress in industrialization and trade." The article continues to report that Canadian businessmen should learn from their U. S. and Japanese counterparts who have established themselves in the Korean market and experienced great success. And the future promises to be even brighter. "A lot of people compare the country (Korea) with Japan and believe that, industrially, it is today where Japan was about 20 years ago. This is basically a fair comparison. Koreans often refer to themselves as a medium developed country. Although there is still much to be done, they are a dynamic and vigorous nation. Further development is just a question of time. The Republic is already engaged in very sophisticated industrial development and the future is promising."

Each issue of The Korea Trade magazine focuses on a different manufacturing or export sector of the economy. Some of the issues disseminated by Korea Trade Center during 1974 reported on the manufacture of machinery, sporting goods and leisure articles, toys and handicraft products, household utensils and construction materials, and electronics and electric products.

MALAGASY REPUBLIC (MADAGASCAR)

David S. King

Statement

Mr. King testified before the House of Representatives Committee on Agriculture, on behalf of the private sugar producers of the Malagasy Republic, during the Committee's hearings on the proposed extension of the Sugar Act. The Malagasy Republic, on the island of Madagascar, attained full independence from France in 1960. Since that time the Malagasy Republic and the U. S. have experienced friendly relations, as evidenced by the "long-term development loans" which the Malagasy Republic has received from the U. S. Agency for International Development, and the agreement which allows the U. S. NASA to operate a civilian satellite tracking station in the Malagasy Republic.

On behalf of the Malagasy Republic sugar industry, Mr. King requested a slight increase in that country's previous quota under the Sugar Act. He noted that the Malagasy Republic has been a dependable supplier of sugar for the U. S. market since first being granted a quota under the Sugar Act in 1965.

Mr. King explained the importance of sugar exports, and the sugar producers' reasons for wishing to participate in the U. S. sugar program in this way: "The Malagasy Republic is a developing country deriving the bulk of its export earnings from sugar and other tropical products. The Malagasy Republic is a surplus sugar producer and production will be expanded under the present goals for economic development - a basic part of which is directed towards the agricultural sector with emphasis on increased productivity in order to satisfy the needs of its people, and to increase production for export. The United States is a major preferential market available to the Malagasy sugar industry. Over the long run, the United States market offers the Malagasy Republic opportunities for achieving its goal of full economic independence and a higher standard of living."

The Federal Industrial Development Authority of Malaysia disseminates numerous publications inviting foreign businesses to invest capital and technology in Malaysia. The pamphlet Malaysia - Investment Opportunities for U. S. Corporations lists numerous industries and products which are suitable for investment, as well as detailing incentives and benefits available to investors. It reports that Malaysia enjoys a "healthy investment climate--- Where foreign investments can grow and expand into highly profitable ventures. Malaysia believes in free private enterprise and we welcome foreign investments. There is guarantee against nationalisation and political risks and the Malaysian constitution safeguards foreign investments against expropriation." Additional attractions in Malaysia include "abundant and productive labor", "excellent infrastructure facilities", "political and monetary stability", and "tempting investment incentives". "Endowed with rich natural resources and labelled as the next economic showpiece of Asia, the country is fast becoming the next investment location for many multinational and international corporations from all over the world."

An advertising supplement in Fortune magazine states that Malaysia is in the prime location for access to the developing southeast Asia region. In addition, "Malaysia is the world's largest producer of natural rubber, tin, tropical hardwood, pepper, and, since 1966, palm oil. Virtually untouched are other rich natural resources - bauxite, iron ore, and other metals, hydroelectric power, and now, because of dramatic new discoveries, oil and gas."

The Malaysian government has instituted a program to encourage economic growth by broadening the country's industrial base, and enlarging its range of exports. "Malaysia continues to seek and to welcome new industries, preferably in the form of joint ventures under certain broad and flexible guidelines. These offer very attractive opportunities for the profit minded. Generally preferred are high technology industries which are labor intensive and export oriented. For new ventures there are tempting investment incentives. A pioneer status program currently exempts approved projects from payment of income and development taxes for periods ranging from two to eight and, in some circumstances, up to ten years. In addition there are other special incentives - for labor utilization, for special locations, hotel construction, etc. . . ."

One issue of Malaysian Digest reported on a speech delivered by Prime Minister Tun Abdul Razak to the Conference of Southeast Asia's Natural Resources and the World Economy. The Prime Minister stated that while the developing countries "recognize that our own advancement is dependent on the markets, technology and products that the consuming countries of our natural resources have to offer, . . . we expect that other countries will also recognize our legitimate national interest in controlling our own resources and in obtaining a fair share of the economic and social benefits from the development of these resources." Calling for a "new order governing the relations between investor and the host country," the Prime Minister "emphasized that Malaysia believed in economic nationalism in guiding the exploitation of our natural resources in such a way that our people and our country would obtain the greatest benefit."

The FIDA disseminated numerous other publications, including Malaysia Industrial Digest, Malaysia - A Basic Guidebook for Potential Investors, Malaysia - Your Profit Centre in Asia.

MAURITIUS

Statements

John H. Sharon, Esquire appeared before the House of Representatives Committee on Agriculture, offering testimony on behalf of the Mauritius Sugar Industry during hearings on the proposed extension of the Sugar Act. He explained that "Mauritius is essentially a sugar island. It has no mineral resources and its economy is exclusively based on agriculture and agricultural industries, predominantly sugar." Sugar cultivation occupies 46.5% of the countries land area, accounts for 91% of its total exports, and employs 30% of the working population.

Mauritius was eager to continue and enlarge its participation under the U. S. Sugar Act, and "has traditionally sought long term special arrangements for the marketing of its sugar. As a developing nation more dependent upon sugar exports for its foreign exchange than any other nation in the world, Mauritius has more to gain in the long run by selling to stable markets than by relying upon the historic vagaries of the world market."

Another reason for participation is Mauritius' desire to expand its commercial ties with the U. S., which have a "long and friendly history." Mauritius has allowed the U. S. Navy and Air Force to use its airport and harbor facilities, has "accommodated U. S. space and other projects", invites U. S. business investment, and extends "preferential tariff treatment to U. S. made goods." Mauritius also wishes to purchase more U. S. goods, but must first be allowed to export more sugar to the U. S. market.

Mr. Sharon requested an increase in Mauritius' quota under the Sugar Act, from 30,000 to 100,000 tons, a request based upon the country's "performance to date, its projected production capacity of no less than 800,000 tons annually, its unique dependence on sugar exports, and its status as the ninth largest world sugar exporter."

Dennis O'Rourke, a partner in the law firm of Rouss & O'Rourke, appeared before the House of Representatives Committee on Agriculture during hearings on the proposed extension of the Sugar Act, on behalf of the National Association of Sugar Producers of Mexico. He reported that sugar is traditionally Mexico's first or second largest foreign exchange earner, therefore a very important export. Mexico regards the U. S. sugar program as "a mutually satisfactory arrangement, since it has been a logical partnership between two countries whose geographical and commercial positions make it a natural relationship." Mr. O'Rourke further emphasized the importance of sugar in the overall balance of U. S. - Mexico trade, which balance "heavily favors the U. S."

Mr. O'Rourke subsequently sent a letter to the members of the Committee concerning wages paid to sugar workers, in which he said that "sugar workers are among the best paid labor groups in Mexico."

Mr. Vilankulu disseminated the COREMO Newsletter on behalf of the Comite Revolucionario de Mozambique. The newsletter expresses the viewpoint of the Mozambican liberation forces in their struggle against "Portuguese colonialism". "The Mozambique Revolutionary Committee and the entire Mozambican people are not only determined to smash anybody and anything that stand in their way to the seizure of political power but also to hold high the banner of African revolution, and never to relax or waver no matter what obstacles, artificial barriers and political intrigues are on the road to freedom and national independence."

A press release that was reprinted in the newsletter states: "The essence of Portuguese colonialism is oppression and exploitation of African peoples. It has never been and never will be a friend of African peoples anywhere.

"The freedom forces in Mozambique know this and that is why they cannot compromise with a political system based on oppression and exploitation. Many Mozambican nationalists have come forward to participate in anti-colonialist struggle and some have laid their lives down for this just cause. With such political atmosphere Portuguese authorities are scared stiff."

Silverstein and Mullens, representing the Government of the Netherlands Antilles, sent numerous letters to members of Congress and government agencies during 1974. The letters addressed several topics, including the following: a letter to the Internal Revenue Service expressing opposition to a change in IRS policy concerning international finance subsidiaries; letters to two members of the House of Representatives recommending changes in the proposed Tax Reform Act of 1974, involving the tax deductible status of convention related expenses incurred outside the U. S.; and letters to the U. S. Customs Service regarding the possibility of Netherlands Antilles customs officers being trained by the U. S. Customs Service.

NORTHERN IRELAND

News Releases

Various

Oliver-Beckman, Inc. disseminated news releases on developments in Northern Ireland throughout 1974. One release entitled "Northern Ireland's 'Mini-Miracle'" reports on a "massive campaign to haul the country up by its bootstraps, destroy the politically explosive spectre of unemployment, and persuade shrewd businessmen that investment here has a profitable future." Far reaching incentives to new industry, including 30% or higher tax-free cash grants for plant construction or machinery, a wide ranging Government sponsored training program, and a low level of industrial unrest have combined to give Northern Ireland an industrial growth rate that is twice that of the United Kingdom.

Other news releases reported on topics evident by their titles, such as: "New Technology for Northern Ireland"; "Ulster Industrial Boom Unaffected By Unrest"; "Northern Ireland Woos Japanese Industry"; "Northern Ireland Trade Continues to Expand"; and "German Company Moves to Northern Ireland."

PALESTINE

The Palestine Arab Delegation

Letters, Press Releases,
Pamphlet

Various

The Palestine Arab Delegation, representing the Arab Higher Committee for Palestine, disseminated in press release form copies of letters which had been sent to the President of the Security Council and the General Assembly of the United Nations. Each of these letters condemns Israel and U. S. support of Israel.

A statement submitted to the U. N. General Assembly charges: "The responsibility for the continuation of the tragedy of the Middle East, for wars and bloodshed, for the suffering and sacrifice of the peoples of the Middle East, and for this threat to international peace and security, should be squarely placed on the United States of America. The United States of America is a Zionist-occupied nation; it is in effect occupied by a Zionist alien minority. This Zionist alien minority, by conspiracy, planning and design, achieved control of the media of mass-communication, control of the United States Congress, control of the policy-making machinery of the United States Administration, control of labor unions, control of the majority of United States politicians, and have been able to brainwash the majority of the American people."

Another letter warns Arab leaders that U. S. policy in the Middle East remains pro-Israel. "Some Arab leaders, in their wishful thinking, have convinced themselves that the United States has changed its pro-Zionist policy, and is following an even-handed policy. There is nothing further from the truth. The United States Congress is still controlled by the counterfeit state of 'Israel'. The United States Administration has not changed its policy an iota from the full military, economic and political support of the counterfeit state of 'Israel'. The United States media of mass communication is committed and dedicated to the support of the Zionist cause and for its animosity to the Arabs. What has changed in the United States is that its Secretary of State is willing and able to deceive Arab leaders in believing that he and the United States Administration are even-handed, while they are 100% committed to the counterfeit state of 'Israel'."

At another point, The Palestine Arab Delegation explains their position on Palestine and a return to peace. "We Palestinians have been the victims of aggression, injustice, and exile. Our people have suffered more than any other nation or people in the last 50 years. In spite of all this, we do not harbor any malice or ill-will against the Jewish religion or against Jews. When we ask to regain our inalienable rights in our ancestral homeland, we do not seek to destroy anybody or violate the rights of anybody. Our plan is to establish peace in the Middle East on the basis of justice. Jews and Arabs lived in the Middle East as fellow citizens in many Arab states. There is no reason why Palestinian Moslems, Palestinian Christians and Palestinian Jews should not live together as fellow citizens in the democratic state of Palestine. All the Arab states are extending their invitation to their citizens of the Jewish faith who were deceived by Zionists and lured to emigrate to the counterfeit state of Israel. By returning home to the countries of their origin, Jews can live as fellow citizens of Arabs in all the Arab states in the Middle East. This is the only way for a just and lasting peace in the Middle East."

Palestine Liberation
Organization

Pamphlets, Brochures

Various

The Palestine Liberation Organization (PLO) disseminated pamphlets and brochures on behalf of the PLO in Cairo. A brochure entitled Toward A Democratic Palestine reports: "The Palestinian Revolution is determined to fight for the creation of the new democratic and non-sectarian Palestine as the long-term ultimate goal of liberation. Annihilation of the Jews or the Palestinian exiles, and the creation of an exclusive racist state in Palestine be it Jewish, Christian or Moslem is totally unacceptable and unworkable. The oppressed Palestinian people will fight and make all necessary sacrifices to demolish such a state, now and in the future."

Basic Facts About the Palestine Problem claims to report the circumstances surrounding the foundation of the state of Israel. In a question and answer format, this publication asks "Do You Know" that: "the original 1947 recommendation to create a 'Jewish State' in Palestine was approved at the first vote, only by European American, and Australian States . . . . Every Asian State, and every African State (with the exception of the Union of South Africa) voted against it? . . . And that, when the vote was cast in plenary session (of the U. N.) on 29 November 1947, urgent American pressures (which a member of the Truman cabinet described as 'bordering onto scandal') had succeeded in prevailing only upon one Asian country (the Philippines) and one African country (Liberia), both of which had special vulnerability to American pressures, to abandon their declared opposition? . . . And that, in other words, the 'Jewish State' was planted at the point-of-intersection of Asia and Africa without the free approval of any Middle Eastern, Asian or African country except the Union of South Africa, itself ruled by an alien minority?"

Another of the statements in this publication maintains "that Israel has been trying to portray the Palestine problem as a conflict between Arabs and Jews, when in essence, in word as well as in deed, our struggle has always been directed against Zionism and not against Jews . . . . And that a considerable segment of Jews throughout the world are anti-Zionist, to whom Zionism with its racial connotations, its inherent political chauvinism, its inherent arrogance and fanaticism, is not only a negation of the spiritual and cultural legacy of Judaism, but a threat to them as Jews, for Zionism breeds anti-Semitism?"

Other publications disseminated by the Palestine Liberation Organization included On the Necessity for an Anti-Racialist Solution to the Palestine Conflict, Western Public Opinion and the Palestine Conflict, and Towards Peace in Palestine.

PANAMAArthur L. Quinn and
Arthur Lee Quinn

Statement

Arthur L. Quinn and Arthur Lee Quinn presented a statement to the House of Representatives Committee on Agriculture on behalf of the sugar industry of Panama, and its request for an increased quota under the proposed extension of the U. S. Sugar Act. The Panama Canal has served to bring a heavy American influence on Panama, according to the Quinns. Panama has a "dollar economy" and is heavily dependent on U. S. trade for importing products which cannot be manufactured in Panama, and exporting its various agricultural products. The balance of trade heavily favors the U. S., to the extent that the largest exporter of bananas, which are Panama's major export, is a U. S. corporation which is able to repatriate its profits.

Sugar, Panama's second major export, is vital to the Panamanian economy as a foreign exchange earner. Panama's small population makes it impossible for that nation to compete with industrialized nations in the manufacturing sector, and the foreign exchange earned by sugar is used to buy the manufactured goods needed to maintain growth. Access to the U. S. market is essential, in that it is "the sole export market which offers steady growth and amply compensating returns."

Warren Weil Public Relations disseminated a press release on behalf of Panama's Colon Free Zone. The Zone's importance is obvious from the release, which states that "the Free Zone has become second only to the Panama Canal as a source of service revenue to this country of more than 1,500,000 people. By taking advantage of its strategic location at the crossroads of Latin America and world markets where shipping and airlines from so many parts of the world converge, more than 5,000 Panamanians are now employed as an outgrowth of this enterprise."

Companies located in the Free Zone benefit from their proximity to markets and tax advantages.

PARAGUAY

Sheldon Z. Kaplan

Statement

Mr. Kaplan represented the Sugar Industry of Paraguay during the House of Representatives Committee on Agriculture hearings on the proposed extension of the Sugar Act.

Mr. Kaplan stated that Paraguay requested an increase in its quota under the Sugar Act, for the following reasons:

"(1) The sales derived from participation in a stable market such as the United States, where prices are maintained at an adequate level (unlike the world market, characterized by sharp swings in prices) permits Paraguay to plan efficiently and progressively for the orderly development of its industry. (2) Participation assures Paraguay of essential foreign earnings. (3) The program assures steady work and increased productivity to an important sector of small-scale agriculture dedicated to the cultivation of sugar cane."

Mr. Kaplan also gave some details of Paraguay's history of friendly relations with the U. S., stating that the two nations have always held compatible views in international conferences, that Paraguay welcomes and offers a program of incentives for foreign investors, and that Paraguay has never expropriated foreign property.

China Pictorial is a monthly magazine disseminated by China Books & Periodicals on behalf of Guozi Shudian, Peking. Emphasis throughout 1974 was on workers and industry, and the campaign to criticize Lin Piao and Confucius, with additional articles promoting the thought of Mao Tse-tung, theatre productions, art and sports events. The magazine also regularly featured reports on visiting foreign heads of state and dignitaries. Reports on these visits are always accompanied by reprints of joint statements or comments on the relations between the two countries. In the case of the visit by Prime Minister Razak of Malaysia, China Pictorial commented that there is "a traditional friendship of more than two thousand years between the peoples of China and Malaysia. Our two people have always sympathized with and supported each other in the common struggle against imperialism and colonialism. Their friendship has made new progress with the increase of trade and the exchange of visits. The visit to China by Prime Minister Razak and the formal announcement of the establishment of diplomatic relations between the two countries opens a new chapter in the annals of relations between China and Malaysia."

An article reporting on the Spring Export Commodities Fair stated that the 1974 exhibit was larger than any previously held, and that numerous trade contracts with nations from around the world were negotiated. The article reported that the Fair's displays included "more than 40,000 articles and pictures and models showing the exploits of a number of advanced Chinese industrial and agricultural units. These reflect the new achievements won by the Chinese people in socialist revolution and socialist construction under the guidance of Chairman Mao's revolutionary line, and the success of the Great Proletarian Cultural Revolution and the criticism of Lin Piao and Confucius."

An article entitled "New Successes in Revolution and Production", attributes the steady progress in the fields of industry and communications in Liaoning Province to the workers involvement in the campaign criticizing Lin Piao and Confucius. "With Marxism - Leninism - Mao Tse-tung Thought as their weapon, the workers used their spare time to debunk and denounce the Lin Piao anti-Party clique for its crimes in emulating Confucius and preaching 'restraining oneself and returning to the rites' in an attempt to overthrow the dictatorship of the proletariat and restore capitalism. They are vanguards in revolution and pathbreakers in production as well. By criticizing Confucius idealist apriorism - the idea of 'innate knowledge', and the idealist conception of history - 'only the aristocrats are the wise and the people are stupid', they raised their own political consciousness and aroused greater creativeness in production. They went in for technical innovation and tapped the latent power of their enterprises."

A June article, "Resolute Support for the Third World's Just Struggle", reported on an April session at the United Nations devoted to the problems surrounding the use of raw materials and the underdeveloped nations of the world. The chairman of the People's Republic of China delegation, Vice-Premier of the State Council Teng Hsiao-ping, addressed the assembly, and charged that the U. S. and the U. S. S. R., "the two superpowers, are the biggest international exploiters and oppressors of today. They are the source of a new world war . . . . In bullying others, the superpower which flaunts the label of socialism is especially vicious. It has dispatched its armed forces to occupy its 'ally' Czechoslovakia and instigated the war to dismember Pakistan. It does not keep its words. It is perfidious, self-seeking and unscrupulous . . . . Since the two superpowers are contending for world hegemony, the contradiction between them is irreconcilable . . . . Their compromise and collusion can only be partial, temporary and relative, while their conflict is all-embracing, permanent and absolute . . . . The conflict between the superpowers extends over the entire globe. Strategically, its focus is Europe, where they are in constant tense confrontation . . . . So long as imperialism and social-imperialism exist, there definitely will be no tranquillity in the world, nor will there be 'lasting peace'. Either they will fight each other, or the people will rise in revolution."

The article continues to quote the Chairman of the delegation: "Bullying the small, domineering over the weak and oppressing the poor, the two superpowers have aroused strong resistance among the Third World and the people of the whole world . . . . The struggles of the Asian, African and Latin American countries and peoples, advancing wave upon wave, have exposed the essential weakness of imperialism, and particularly the superpowers, which are outwardly strong but inwardly feeble, and have dealt heavy blows at their wild ambitions to dominate the world . . . . The essence of the problems of raw materials and development is the struggle of developing countries to defend their state sovereignty, develop their national economy and combat imperialism, and particularly superpower, plunder and control. This is a very important aspect of the current struggle of the Third World countries and people against colonialism, imperialism and hegemonism."

Renmin Huabao is the Chinese language edition of China Pictorial.

Minzu Huabao is also a Chinese language magazine publication.

China Reconstructs is a monthly magazine published by the China Welfare Institute, which throughout 1974 generally emphasized industrial development, health care, education, revolutionary operas and art.

An article entitled "New Developments in China's Foreign Trade" reports the great expansion of trade that China has experienced since the time of the Great Proletarian Cultural Revolution. The socialist construction has, according to the article, enabled the Chinese people to "transform an old, poor and backward China into a socialist country with initial prosperity." The Chinese policy regulating foreign trade is based on a statement by Chairman Mao, made shortly before the establishment of New China, that the Chinese "wish to have friendly cooperation with the people of all countries and to resume and expand international trade in order to develop production and promote economic prosperity." On this basis, China has, over the past twenty years, "opened up trade with other countries in a planned way, on the basis of equality and mutual benefit, to learn from other countries' merits and to obtain necessary materials, equipment and techniques through exchange. This is putting into practice the principle of making foreign things serve China, and combining learning with inventing in order to increase her ability to build socialism independently, with her own initiative and relying on herself to speed up socialist construction.

"Foreign trade is necessary to the development of China's national economy. At the same time, through foreign trade, China can increase mutual support and cooperation in the economic sphere with fraternal socialist countries and friendly countries of the Third World, thus benefiting each other's economic construction and reinforcing economic independence."

On several occasions China Reconstructs, and other publications disseminated by China Books & Periodicals, criticized the film China by Italian director Antonioni. An article entitled "A Vicious Motive, Despicable Tricks", maintains that the film "reflects the attitude of the tiny handful of imperialists and social-imperialists in the present-day world who have inveterate hatred for New China. The appearance of this film is a serious anti-China event and a wild provocation against the Chinese people." The article charges that the film, which "completely ignores and totally negates the tremendous achievements China has made on all fronts of socialist construction," is "designed solely for the purpose of concentrating its attack on the revolution led by the Communist Party of China." Of Antonioni and his personal motivations, the article stated: "Hostile towards the Chinese people, he used the opportunity of his visit for ulterior purposes; by underhand and utterly despicable means he hunted specifically for material that could be used to slander and attack China. His three-and-half-hour-long film does not at all reflect the new things, new spirit and new face of our great motherland, but puts together many viciously distorted scenes and shots to attack Chinese leaders, smear socialist New China, slander China's Great Proletarian Cultural Revolution and insult the Chinese people."

The Call is a magazine published by the Afro-Asian Writers Bureau, which is located in the Republic of Sri Lanka. The Bureau's executive secretariat is located in Peking, and the magazine is disseminated in the U. S. by China Books & Periodicals on behalf of Guozi Shudian. Articles in The Call focus on developments and revolutionary movements in Cambodia, South Viet Nam, Zimbabwe, The Congo and Mali. In an editorial, "Vigorous Growth of the Third World", The Call charges that the U. S. and the U. S. S. R. have dominated and exploited the Third World nations. "The U. S. imperialists in the role of world 'gendarmes' come to the Third World in their warships equipped with missiles and arrogantly swagger to fill 'vacuums', while the Soviet revisionists run about here and there in the cloak of 'friendship' with daggers hidden underneath, clamouring that they must fulfill their 'special responsibility'. However, the Third World people with growing awareness can no longer be hoodwinked. They have come to understand that Soviet revisionism and U. S. imperialism are jackals of the same lair. The 'vacuum filling' and 'special responsibility' in the Third World can lead them nowhere but to the dock, to be tried and condemned by the people of the Third World."

The editorial charges that the U. S. S. R. is even more of a threat than the U. S. in the struggle for hegemony in the Third World, because "Soviet revisionist social-imperialism has a greater appetite and stretches out its tentacles even farther. It is quite clear that Soviet revisionism intends to take the place of U. S. imperialism in lording it over the world."

The editorial further claims that the Third World nations must struggle together "to oppose imperialism and old and new colonialism, oppose the superpowers' hegemonism and power politics, oppose racism and Zionism, win and safeguard national independence and defend national sovereignty and resources, develop national economy and culture and establish national independent armed forces for maintaining state sovereignty and serving the interests of the great majority of the people."

Other articles in The Call included a call for Afro-Arab unity in the fight against U. S. imperialism and Soviet revisionism, especially in regard to the state of Israel and the Palestinian people; an article alleging to report the activities of a young member of the National United Front of Cambodia; an article by a member of the Zimbabwe African National Union; a report on economic development in Mali; and poetry.

Peking Review, a comprehensive political and theoretical magazine, is published weekly. It reflects the government's views on questions of national and international concern, including such issues as criticism of Confucius and Lin Piao, the philosophy of Mao Tse-tung, criticism of "Soviet revisionism" and "U. S. imperialism", progress made by various "national liberation" movements and other topics of interest. Samples of the positions espoused in Peking Review follow.

NUCLEAR TESTING: "In the excellent situation in which the movement to criticize Lin Piao and Confucius is developing in depth, China successfully conducted a new nuclear test over the western region of the country . . .

"The conducting of necessary and limited nuclear tests by China is entirely for the purpose of defense and for breaking the nuclear monopoly of the superpowers and for ultimately abolishing nuclear weapons. The Chinese Government declares once again: At no time and under no circumstances will it be the first to use nuclear weapons. The Chinese people and Government will, as always, work together with the other peoples and peace-loving countries in the world in the common struggle to achieve the lofty goal of the complete prohibition and thorough destruction of nuclear weapons."

PEOPLE'S REPUBLIC OF CHINA'S ANNIVERSARY: "Under the wise leadership of the Chinese people's great leader Chairman Mao, the People's Republic of China has triumphantly traversed a militant course of 25 years. The dictatorship of the proletariat in China has become more consolidated than ever, the great revolutionary unity among the people of all nationalities has become ever stronger and socialism is advancing victoriously everywhere. We have friends all over the world. The situation at home and abroad is excellent. Filled with revolutionary spirit, the entire Chinese people warmly celebrated the glorious festival of their socialist motherland. They are determined to unite as one and march ahead along Chairman Mao's proletarian revolutionary line."

SOVIET UNION: "Capitalism has made a come-back in all aspects and the socialist Soviet Union has been turned into social-imperialism. This has happened in the wake of the usurpation of party and state power by the revisionist renegade clique. A bureaucrat-monopoly capitalist class of a new type dominates all parts of life in Soviet society today. Corruption, degeneration and all the other social evils inherent in capitalism have spread like a plague to every part of the Soviet land under the rule of the clique."

WORLD ECONOMICS: "The struggle by the oil-producing and raw-material-producing countries to oppose plunder, defend national resources and win their legitimate rights and interests is making gratifying progress. The struggle is complicated and tortuous, but the trend of history is irresistible. The old colonialist and hegemonic structure and order in international economic relations are heading for collapse, whereas new international economic relation established on the basis of respect for state sovereignty, equality and mutual benefit will steadily triumph through repeated struggle."

Edwin H. Seeger represented the Central of Sugar Producing Cooperatives of Peru during the House of Representatives Committee on Agriculture hearings on the proposed extension of the Sugar Act. Mr. Seeger requested that Peru be allowed to maintain its 1974 quota under the extended Sugar Act. He stated that Peru has been a dependable supplier to the U. S. market, that the two governments enjoy cordial relations, and that most of Peru's foreign purchases are from the U. S. market. In addition, Mr. Seeger advised the Committee that the U. S. "is Peru's only preferential sugar market, and it has provided a valuable source of stability to the Peruvian sugar industry over the years, and has contributed to an improved standard of living for the Peruvian sugar workers. In addition, sugar trade with the United States has benefited the Peruvian economy by providing Peru foreign exchange needed to service its external obligations--including its foreign debt, most of which is held by United States interests--and by affording the workers cooperatives which own Peru's sugar production facilities much-needed capital for planned expansion of sugar production and diversification into new agricultural and industrial activities."

John A. O'Donnell appeared before the House of Representatives Committee on Agriculture on behalf of the Philippine Sugar Institute during hearings on the proposed extension of the Sugar Act of 1948. Mr. O'Donnell reported that the Philippine sugar industry, which experienced its greatest development while the Philippines were an "insular possession" of the U. S., is oriented towards meeting the needs of the U. S. market. Furthermore, the latest trade figures available (1972) show that sugar accounted for 47% of the total exports from the Philippines to the U. S., and "is a mainstay in providing foreign exchange with which the Philippines obtain imports of machinery and other manufactured products and food and fiber."

After the hearings were concluded, Mr. O'Donnell corresponded with Committee members on related topics, including the Committee's consideration of domestic quota levels, and the Philippines schedule for delivering its sugar to the U. S..

Background On China is an irregular publication of the Chinese Information Service (CIS). During 1974 it contained numerous articles which originated in mainland China, including features reported to be secret documents of the Communist Party, as well as articles from the mainland People's Daily and broadcasts by the New China News Agency. Articles from mainland sources were printed, according to Background On China, "for the benefit of students of Chinese Communist affairs." Other items were included to report developments on Taiwan.

Articles based on information originating in the mainland included a denunciation of Lin Piao and his counterrevolutionary clique, for their plot to overthrow the Party Central Committee and Chairman Mao; an attack on "Soviet Revisionism" as "our country's most dangerous and most important enemy"; and an attempt to justify the invitation to President Nixon to visit the People's Republic, explaining that because of the visit, "U. S. lies slandering China in the past were all shattered by facts, and our international influences were expanded."

Other articles in Background On China expressed Taiwan's viewpoint. In February, 1974, Background On China reprinted the text of Republic of China Premier Chiang Ching - kuo's report to the first session of the Legislative Yuan, in which he predicted the downfall of the Communist regime on the mainland, and advised other nations that nothing was to be gained by developing friendly relations with the Communists. The Premier stated that during 20 years of Communist domination, "the people of the Chinese mainland have suffered tragic persecution, ruthless enslavement, deprivation of food and clothing, and extinction of human dignity and freedom. Every true Chinese hates the Communists with all his being. As soon as opportunity arises, all will leap to their feet and join in overthrowing this unprecedentedly cruel regime. If our foreign friends wish to express their sympathies for the Chinese people, they cannot at the same time look honestly at these realities and then go on to 'improve relations' with the Chinese Communists. That will only bring more suffering to the Chinese people. There can be no reliability in gains made from dealing with unstable tyrant oppressors who have been engaging in fierce power struggles and endless internal strife. Such dealings can only accelerate the whirling tide of the adverse international current."

Free China Weekly, a newspaper published by the Chung Hwa Information Service, Taipei, Taiwan, is disseminated by the Chinese Information Service in New York, and the CIS Pacific Coast Bureau in Los Angeles. This publication reports developments in various aspects of life throughout Taiwan, activities by overseas Chinese, and focuses critical attention on events on the mainland.

Free China Review, a monthly magazine publication, includes several articles as regular features in addition to special reports and full color picture stories. Articles recounting Taiwan's progress and development in the fields of politics, industry and economics, and criticizing the Communist controlled mainland, far outweigh general interest features. Included as regular feature articles are such titles as "The Month In Free China", "Economic Milestones" and "Mainland Periscope". These articles report day to day developments, such as trade statistics, diplomatic relations and the influence of the mainland, the newest gross national product figures, foreign investment conditions in Taiwan, and various political events. In reference to the mainland, major consideration has been given the reported dissension and political upheaval, the Communist war against Confucius, and Peking's motivations for developing friendly relations with the U. S. and other western nations.

The article "Victory Over Isolation" reports that Taiwan has continued to progress despite Peking's efforts to isolate the island nation. "Smiling diplomacy became the vehicle of a worldwide Chinese Communist offensive to build up Peiping's prestige and smash that of the Republic of China. President Nixon visited the Chinese mainland in February of 1972 and agreed with Chou En - lai on a 'relaxation of tensions' which was to be culminated in an exchange of liaison offices.

"These undertakings of the United States were painful to the Republic of China, even though Washington made clear it had no intentions of recognizing Peiping or scrapping the mutual assistance treaty with the Republic of China. Even more damaging were stab wounds inflicted by such old friends as Japan and Australia, both of which chose to rush into the arms of the Chinese Communists with unseemly haste."

The article reports further, however, that Taiwan has withstood these diplomatic setbacks, and continued to prosper. "Trade continued to grow. Foreign and overseas Chinese investors came in ever larger numbers, giving the lie to Peiping claims that the world no longer viewed Taiwan as a viable entity. Taiwan's people, whose political spirits were troubled, found themselves living better than ever." On the mainland however, "doors which had once been opened a crack were closed with a bang," as the Communist regime "entered upon a new time of turmoil." "The mainland under the Communists is being plunged into chaos again. The free Chinese of Taiwan stand as tall as ever, anchored in political and social stability which has not been shaken by the Communists' tactics of isolation."

In the article "Peiping's Opportunism", Free China Review interprets Peking's motivations for initiating "ping-pong diplomacy" with the U. S. and other nations, and claims that since its admission to the U. N., Peking has been attempting to "organize an international united front against the U. S. and the U. S. S. R." Peking's goals, according to Free China Review are as follows:

"1. Persuade the U. S. to curb the U. S. S. R. and sabotage normalization of relations between the U. S. and the U. S. S. R.

"2. Win over Japan and cooperate with Japan and the U. S. in preventing Soviet expansion in the Pacific.

"3. Cultivate the Western European countries and frustrate the Soviet policy of a defensive posture in the West and an offensive policy in the East.

"4. End its isolation in the Communist world.

"5. Conduct diplomatic guerrilla warfare in the Third World to harass the U. S. S. R."

Vista is a bi-monthly publication of the China Publishing Company, Taipei, Taiwan, disseminated by the Chinese Information Service, Pacific Coast Branch. Articles appearing in Vista throughout 1974 reported developments on Taiwan, such as: "Tourism In Taiwan", "R O C's Auto Industry Takes Off", "Highway to Prosperity", "R O C's Booming Textile Industry", and "Nuclear Energy: An alternative to Oil".

The Chinese Information Service, Pacific Coast Branch, disseminated, through Public Service Audience Planners, Inc., several films which constitute political propaganda, entitled:

Free China Feature Service, a semi-monthly publication, is in the format of a compilation of news releases. Dated in Taiwan or one of several U. S. cities, numerous short articles reporting Taiwan's developments, the international situation or some other related topic compose each issue of Free China Feature Service. The following samples are representative of articles in Free China Feature Service.

U. S. - MAINLAND TIES: Free China Feature Service reported that Senator Jesse Helms attacked the U. S. policy of recognition of mainland China. He is quoted as follows: "We are told that we cannot ignore 800 million Chinese. Yet, the truth is that when we deal with the Chinese Communist regime in Peiping, we are ignoring the wishes of 800 million Chinese, who have never had any say in the organization of the Communist Government."

ECONOMIC DEVELOPMENT: A U. S. economist visiting Taiwan reportedly categorized the ROC as "among the top five nations in the world as far as the potential for sustained and well-balanced economic growth is concerned."

Another article reported on ROC's "phenomenal economic growth in the last two decades beginning 1953, which brought to its populace one of the highest standards of living among nations in Asia." This article further reports that ROC experienced a 10% economic growth rate in the first five months of 1974, despite worldwide inflation and business decline.

COMMUNIST TURMOIL: Secret agents on the Communist controlled mainland have allegedly reported the outbreak of armed conflict in the political struggle between two factions over the control of power after the death of Chairman Mao Tse-tung. One faction supports Premier Chau En-lai, the other Chiang-Ching, Mao's wife. Reports of battles throughout the mainland, in Canton, Peking and Shanghai, have allegedly resulted in hundreds of deaths, and extensive damage to traffic and telecommunications facilities.

REFUGEES: The International Rescue Committee in Hong Kong reported that 18,181 refugees, almost all between the ages of 17 - 30, escaped to Hong Kong from the Chinese mainland during 1973.

News From China is a daily news bulletin from Taipei provided by the Chinese Information Service. In addition to reporting news on all aspects of life in Taiwan, the bulletin also provides coverage of the activities of overseas Chinese, international developments and news on the mainland. Typical of the releases issued during 1974 are the following:
"Ambassador Unger Pledges Continued U. S. Friendship",
"Industrial Export From Taiwan Flourishes", "ROC to Double Productivity in 5 Years Thru 10 Development Projects",
"Premier Chiang Again Rules Out Dialogue With Chinese Reds",
"Flexible Tax Holiday Offered to Foreign Investors",
"Amb. Shen: Closer Washington - Peiping Ties Will Not Benefit U. S.,", "Peiping's Continued Backing of Maoist Guerrillas In

The Chinese Information Service also disseminated press releases in the Chinese language.

International Sino-

Statements

Myron Solter, Executive Director of the International Sino-American Trade Association (ISATA), presented a statement on behalf of the Association to the Committee on Finance, U. S. Senate, during hearings on the Trade Reform Act (HR 10710) in April, 1974. ISATA, whose foreign principal is the Board of Foreign Trade in Taiwan, is a "trade association whose membership comprises firms and individuals interested in the development of trade and investment between the United States and the Republic of China (Taiwan)." Mr. Solter's statement was directed at those sections of the Trade Reform Act which threatened some direct impact on trade and investment relations between the U. S. and Taiwan.

Two of the recommendations included in Mr. Solter's comments relating to factors affecting the Republic of China were a call for a provision in the Act to "require the President to give new consideration to efforts being made voluntarily by individual countries to correct a persistent balance of payments surplus between such country and the United States," (such as ROC); and a precise definition of "what countries would be eligible as beneficiary developing countries on the basis of the present definition of less-developed countries".

In May, Mr. Solter and the International Sino-American Trade Association submitted a letter to the U. S. Tariff Commission on behalf of the Taiwan Handicraft Association, a member organization of ISATA. The letter, dealing with the proposed Brussels Tariff Nomenclature, reported that the proposed formula used for setting duty rates "would work an inequity on exporters of straw mats from Taiwan."

Hugh C. Newton disseminates information on behalf of the Republic of China, for the most part in the form of reprints of news items and speeches, which he disseminates to editorial page editors, publishers, syndicated columnists, and related media representatives. The reprints are usually accompanied by a cover letter in which Newton emphasizes the point he wishes to stress, such as Taiwan's progress in the areas of political freedom, industrialization, and trade expansion, or contrasting conditions in Taiwan with those on the Chinese mainland.

Several of Newton's disseminations were publications of the Chinese Information Service, including a booklet consisting of two series of articles written by two newspaper editors after visiting the Republic of China. Wilbur Elston of The Detroit News wrote a series comparing various aspects of social, political and economic development on Taiwan and the People's Republic of China. He notes "vast economic differences" between the two Chinas, and states that "a modern David on the island of Taiwan is soundly trouncing the Communist Goliath on the Chinese mainland in many forms of economic endeavor." Elston reports that the Taiwanese regard U. S. detente with the mainland as a serious blow, and that they worry that diplomatic setbacks suffered as a result of this may affect their own economic expansion and political independence. Foreign investments in Taiwan have grown, however, and trade expansion continues not only with the U. S., but also with nations such as Canada and Japan, which continue to trade although formal diplomatic relations have been severed.

Commenting on Peking's attitude towards relations with the U. S., Elston quoted Republic of China Vice President Yen as saying "we think the American people will realize the Chinese Communists are being friendly only because of the threat to them from the Soviet Union. We also see more internal conflict ahead which bodes ill for the Communists." Taiwan's vice-minister of foreign affairs reportedly stated that the U. S. paid a high price for detente with Peking, and received very little in return. Elston's own feelings are that Peking hopes its friendly relations with the U. S. will act as "a counterbalance to the threat from the Soviet Union which has more than a million troops on the Chinese border. But the Chinese Communists also want trade to modernize their industry and they will make their purchases where they think they will have the greatest political influence."

The other series of articles, by Chattanooga News - Free Press editor Lee Anderson, focus on: the Republic of China's Quemoy island, situated little more than a mile from the Chinese Communist shore; the reverent attitude of the free Chinese towards Confucius, and the Communist "war" against his teachings; the growth of trade and industry in Taiwan; and political conditions on the Chinese mainland.

Newton also disseminated reprints of a New York Times supplement, prepared by the Chinese Information Service, which was circulated with the October 6, 1974 issue of the newspaper. Entitled Free China Building for the 1980's, the 40 page supplement was designed to inform readers of economic, social, political and industrial advances on Taiwan. The supplement reports that the Republic of China, despite its recent diplomatic reverses, has experienced a period of unprecedented growth, so that its citizens "now enjoy the second highest standard of living in Asia, a per capita income that is five times that of the people on the Chinese mainland, and a stable economy whose gross national product has risen at a real rate of over 10 per cent a year in the last decade." Additional government programs have been initiated to assure that this progress continues.

Other articles in the supplement report on a building boom in Taipei, the role of women in Chinese society, the quality of merchandise produced in Taiwan, advantages offered foreign investors in Taiwan, health facilities, freedom of the press and Confucianism.

On March 7, 1974, George C. Pendleton testified before the House of Representatives Committee on Agriculture to present the position of the Government of the Republic of China concerning their participation under the proposed extension of the Sugar Act of 1948. Mr. Pendleton described the sugar industry on Taiwan as established and stable. The Taiwan Sugar Corporation, formed by the government in 1946, depends on private farmers for 70% of its cane supply, and has since 1966 maintained a "sugar stabilization fund", which guarantees farmers a minimum price for their sugar cane, and assures a steady supply of the cane.

Calling Taiwan's developing economy "one of the notable success stories of the U. S. aid program," Pendleton stated that since U. S. economic aid ended in 1965, "foreign trade has been the main factor in the economic growth" of Taiwan. Sugar exports are an essential part of this foreign trade, and in 1973 accounted for $90 million. In addition, the sugar industry provides employment for more than 15,000 persons in Taiwan, and an additional 8,000 who are employed during the harvest season.

Based on these facts, Taiwan's "demonstrated production capability," and past performance as "a faithful supplier to the U. S. since 1953," Pendleton asked that Taiwan either be allowed to maintain its 1974 quota, or be given a larger quota under the proposed extension of the Sugar Act.

RHODESIA

Rhodesian Information Office	Rhodesian Commentary	3984-5048
	Rhodesian Viewpoint	3447-4450
	Booklets, Brochures, Speeches	Various

The Rhodesian Information Office disseminated numerous publications, and provided speakers on various occasions, throughout 1974. Two topics of major concern in the information disseminated were the imposition of sanctions by the U. N. and related activities of that organization, and the U. S. attitude towards the sanctions, particularly regarding U. S. import of Rhodesian Chrome.

Rhodesian Viewpoint reprints newspaper articles or editorial items which are favorable to the Rhodesian position, such as an editorial from the Richmond (Virginia) News Leader, which compared the U. N. trade embargo against Rhodesia with the recent Arab oil boycott. "'At the height of the Arab boycott,' said the editorial, 'many Americans rightly deplored the Arabs' use of the boycott to force a change in American policy towards Israel. Such boycotts, the argument went, are economic blackmail and are inherently wrong. So it is with U. S. concurrence in the boycott of trade with Rhodesia: the boycott is an endeavor to force a change in Rhodesian domestic policy. Such a boycott is equally wrong.'" The editorial continues to compare U. S. dependence on the Arab nations for oil with dependence on the Soviet Union for chrome, which will necessarily result if the U. S. refuses to import chrome from Rhodesia, which possesses the world's largest known chrome resources.

Another issue of Rhodesian Viewpoint quotes an editorial from the Wall Street Journal which comments on Rhodesia's status in the U. N. and relations with the U. S. "'Despite the pretense that the former crown colony remains part of Britain's vanishing empire, Rhodesia is clearly a viable, independent nation. For the U. N. to pretend otherwise, when so much of its effort is given over to anti-colonialist denunciations, can be explained only in terms of that organization's unlimited capacity for selective indignation.'" Turning to the issue of U. S. policy towards Rhodesia, the editorial states: "'In moral terms, Rhodesia's white minority government obviously mocks the concept of one-man, one-vote, but in no way does the Salisbury government even remotely compare with the Russian government. In diplomatic terms, to single out Rhodesia for abusing democracy means having to turn a blind eye to the policies of a majority of the world's governments, including almost all of Rhodesia's African neighbors.

"'Yet just as the White House is recognizing East Germany, beckoning to Cuba and seeking most-favored nation status for the U. S. S. R., it is expressing support of efforts to reimpose a ban on imports from Rhodesia. If imports of Rhodesian chrome are shut off, the U. S. will have two choices. It can rely on the Soviet Union, the world's other supplier. Or it can stop making chrome steels in Pittsburgh and put those made out of Rhodesian chrome in Yokohama.'"

Officials of the Rhodesian Information Office addressed school, civic and trade groups around the country during 1974, for the most part on these same issues. In addition, the Rhodesian Information Office disseminated Rhodesian Commentary, a monthly newsletter containing information about the country, and various pamphlets and brochures, including: The New Environment, which describes townships being developed for the country's growing African urban population; Rhodesia in Brief, which contains such basic information as the country's history, geography, industrial development, etc; Anatomy of Terror, which reports on terrorist activities; and Rhodesia: A Field for Investment '73, which contains information on Rhodesia's commerce, industry and economy.

SOUTH AFRICA

Casey, Lane & Mittendorf	Statement Letters	75 Various
-----------------------------	----------------------	---------------

John R. Mahoney, a partner in the firm, Casey, Lane & Mittendorf, presented a statement on behalf of the South African Sugar Association (SASA) to the House of Representatives Committee on Agriculture during hearings on the proposed extension of the Sugar Act. He told the Committee that South Africa, which is the world's fourth largest exporter of sugar, desired an increase in its quota under an extension of the Act. In support of this request, Mr. Mahoney noted that the ever increasing trade between the U. S. and South Africa consistently favored the U. S., recently by some $300 million. He further stated that the SASA "wishes to maintain its diverse existing markets throughout the world - carefully developed on the strength of its reputation for commercial reliability."

In response to a Committee request for information on the foreign government's attitude towards the U. S. and U. S. citizen's interests within that country, Mr. Mahoney stated that "South Africa has traditionally cooperated with the U. S. in all important fields of overall strategy and continues to support the U. S. position on every major issue affecting the security of the U. S. and the Western world," and "South Africa does not discriminate against U. S. citizen's interests and property in the country. She has, instead, extended 'most favored nation' treatment." He cited as examples, South Africa's maintenance of the important Cape Sea route, their cooperation and assistance to the U. S. in scientific, technical and other areas, and the more than $1 billion in U. S. investments in the country.

Several letters were sent to members of the House of Representatives some time after the statement was presented, in an effort to defend SASA against criticism leveled against the South African Government's social and political policies. Mr. Mahoney wrote that "no substantial question has ever been raised as to the commercial performance of our clients (SASA), a strictly private enterprise organization representing all sugar cane growers and millers in the South African industry. There is no Government representation at all in SASA."

Collier, Shannon, Rill & Edwards disseminated a booklet entitled The RSA and the Southern Hemisphere: Political and Military-Strategic, on behalf of the Department of Information, Republic of South Africa. This publication states that the Republic of South Africa (RSA) must view its problems in the context of world events. Of specific interest to this publication are Communist activities and involvements in the Southern Hemisphere, which have pushed that area of the world into "a conspicuous position in the East-West power struggle." The booklet maintains that this Communist (both Soviet and Chinese) presence poses a threat, "directly and indirectly," to South Africa, and the Communist influence is expanded only at the expense of Western influence. The RSA sees that certain steps must be taken to satisfactorily resolve this situation. "We must secure our own territory and ensure domestic order, and we must promote good neighborhood and friendly relations with Africa and the countries in the Southern Hemisphere. We must persuade the West that the Communist penetration into the Southern Hemisphere is a direct threat to Western Europe and the rest of the free world. As soon as the West realises the seriousness of this threat, it would also realise that it could not effectively counter the threat without the cooperation and the supporting capabilities of the Republic of South Africa."

South African Scope is a monthly magazine publication which features articles on social, industrial and political aspects of life in South Africa. An article entitled "Dynamic Implementation of Separate Development" cites developments in South Africa in an effort to demonstrate that "separate development is not merely a theory, but is being translated dynamically into practice. Separate development promises each distinctive nation in South Africa, including the Coloured nation, the opportunity to develop to the utmost."

Another article focuses on "Terrorism in Southern Africa", which Scope describes as a Communist attempt to overthrow Southern African governments. Soviet and Chinese weapons, once needed in Asia, are now being supplied to African terrorists. The article is also critical of Western organizations which voice support of the African liberation movements. "The sooner the West realizes that terrorism, with its ghastly devastation and slaughter of innocents is now regarded increasingly as the conventional way, the sooner it will have faced reality, and generated a hope of dealing with the problem realistically, not for the sake of one affected area, but for all mankind."

South African Scope printed excerpts from an Indiana speech delivered by the South African Ambassador, Mr. J. S. F. Botha, entitled "Mutual Cooperation", in which he related many instances of contact and cooperation between the U. S. and South Africa. He also noted the difficulties which South Africa, because of its racial composition, has encountered in the world community. "Regrettably anti-South African activists, also in the U S, have seized on the passing negative aspects. With emotional distortion they have fashioned outrageous accusations in an attempt to break down the long-standing association between our two countries.

"We are concerned about the insidious attempts to hustle up conflict in Southern Africa - the attempts to have the U. S. become involved in this . . . . There is also a spurious campaign to pressure American corporations with investments in South Africa to withdraw from South Africa, on the pretext that South Africa is a 'bad' country . . . . The pressures for economic withdrawal are really pointless posturing . . . . They are an anachronistic attempt to weaken and isolate South Africa; to destroy the constructive and successful collaboration of generations of South Africans and Americans in the enrichment of the quality of life in both our countries. These attempts are anachronistic for it takes us back to less worthy times of foreign interventions. It is in any event not in harmony with those constructive and imaginative steps of these momentous times towards building bridges between nations and peoples, across images of hostility."

Africa Institute Bulletin is a monthly magazine publication which focuses on various topics of interest on the African continent. Items featured throughout 1974 include: "The OAU - a political pressure group"; "Portugal's war"; "Bantu nations in South Africa"; "China's decade in Africa"; "Africa as an energy base in the seventies"; "African democracy and one-party states"; "Ethiopia - time has caught up with the Emperor"; and "Waning French influence in Africa".

South African Panorama is a monthly magazine which reports news and feature items on South Africa, with full color illustrations. An article entitled "Key to Growth" reports on progress made in the Venda Homeland area, under the guidance of the South Africa Department of Agriculture, to organize and improve agricultural methods, in order to provide a strong economic base and stability for the Homeland.

"Steel from Newcastle" reports on the establishment of a steel production facility in Newcastle by the South African Iron and Steel Industrial Corporation. The article speculates that the Newcastle area has resources which are capable of supporting an industrial area larger than that in Johannesburg.

"A Slice of the Orient" reports that "within the giant web of international trade, the South Africa - Japan link has grown to a formidable exchange in raw materials and finished products, and it is growing steadily." The article also explains the life of Japanese living in South Africa.

In addition to these regularly published items, the Information Service of South Africa sporadically disseminated numerous booklets and brochures. A folder entitled The Republic of South Africa states that the existence of many nations within the borders of South Africa "has given rise to the governmental policy of Separate Development which is designed to provide full social, and economic advancement and political independence to the various Bantu (black) nations as well as the White nation. So far nine homelands of distinctive Bantu nations have been given official recognition by the Government of South Africa . . . . The next stage is complete independence and the choice for this big step is left to those nations to decide when they wish to start independence negotiations with the South African Government."

Other publications disseminated include: The Integration Model, The Security of the Cape Oil Route, South Africa in a Nuclear World, Grow With South Africa, and South African Tradition.

Justice M. Chambers

Mr. Chambers appeared before the House of Representatives Committee on Agriculture during hearings on the proposed extension of the Sugar Act on behalf of the Swaziland Sugar Association. Mr. Chambers stated that Swaziland, a small country in southern Africa, "is economically viable and completely non-racial." The sugar and related industries provide the means of livelihood for approximately 10% of the population of the country. On behalf of the Association, Mr. Chambers requested an increase of their quota by 15,000 short tons, and detailed the country's plans for expanding the industry. He told the Committee that the "impact of sugar on this small growing nation cannot be overstated," and that Swaziland would benefit more than any other nation from an increased quota.

The firm of Arnold & Porter prepared a memorandum on behalf of the Swiss Cheese Union which argued against the imposition of countervailing duties on cheese imported from Switzerland. The memorandum emphasized three points which, it said, demonstrated that countervailing duties were unwarranted in the case of Swiss cheese imports: (1) the imported cheese, sold at prices considerably higher than domestic cheese, does not pose any threat to the domestic cheese industry; (2) the Swiss Government does not subsidize the cheese industry in an effort to promote exports, but rather to insure a certain degree of national agricultural self-sufficiency by keeping prices of agricultural and dairy products at a sufficiently high level to guarantee farmers an attractive income; and (3) the imposition of the countervailing duties would almost surely damage the mutually beneficial trade and economic relations which exist between the U. S. and Switzerland.

The Office of Tibet disseminated a press release and a news bulletin News - Tibet on behalf of the Dalai Lama. In addition to news about Tibetan refugees and life in Tibet under Chinese rule, the publications reported on the March observation of the fifteenth anniversary of the Tibetan national uprising. The Office of Tibet reports that 5,000 Tibetan exiles attended the meeting and heard an address by the Dalai Lama, in which he stated that fifteen years ago "six million Tibetans lost the right to determine their destiny, tens of thousands fled their homes and many more lost their lives in an era when scores of nations regained their freedom after a long period of colonial slavery."

Development Counsellors International, Ltd. disseminated numerous press releases on behalf of the Trinidad and Tobago Industrial Development Corporation. One of these releases reported that numerous international companies have already established operations in Trinidad and Tobago, and that the area is "the production center of new four-nation Caribbean Common Market." The following factors have contributed to Trinidad and Tobago's "rapid industrial growth": "a location close to the geographic center of the Western Hemisphere; English-speaking, highly skilled workers with a literacy rate slightly higher than that in the U. S.; an industrial heritage including long familiarity with the highly technological oil industry; special incentives that include subsidized training programs, duty free imports, and an income tax holiday; a wide range of amenities including outstanding climate, a successful multi-racial society, and a lively and creative culture."

The Trinidad & Tobago Industrial Development Corporation Newsletter reported news of industrial growth, incentives available to investors, and other general information of interest on the economy.

In addition to the Newsletter, the Industrial Development Corporation disseminated numerous other publications, such as A businessman's guide to profit opportunities in Trinidad & Tobago, Industrial Incentives, and Factory Sites. A brochure entitled Trinidad Industries reports that "the Government of Trinidad and Tobago welcomes new industry and, through the Industrial Development Corporation (I.D.C.), provides broad concessions and assistance to manufacturers that want to establish production lines there. Whether your objectives can best be served, by subcontracting, entering a joint venture or establishing your own facility, the I.D.C. is prepared to react promptly and work with you on all aspects of offshore production, including factory space, recruiting and training programs, applicable freight rates, U. S. tariff structures, export-import procedures and related matters. Generous industrial incentives are available, e.g. subsidized training programs and factory leases, customs concessions and tax holidays."

Sputnik, a monthly magazine disseminated on behalf of Mezhdunarodnaia Kniga, Moscow, is a digest of information taken from the Soviet press, to inform readers on diverse aspects of Soviet life, including science and technology, political issues, economic problems and developments, and travel. One article, entitled "Who Blocks Normalisation", charges that Mao Tse-tung is responsible for the tensions that exist between the Soviet Union and the People's Republic of China. "The Chinese leaders' policy after the 10th Congress of their Communist Party, which was held in August 1973, reveals continual intensification of anti-Sovietism. Now this process has entered a new, still more unbridled and hysterical stage.

"At the same time, some data prove that the military psychosis is being artificially fanned by Mao Tse-tung and his henchmen, mostly due to the ineradicable problems generated by the Maoist regime. There are many indications that quite a few Peking rulers do not believe in a 'Soviet menace'. Among them, in all probability, was Lin Piao, whom the Maoists are vainly and completely without foundation seeking to present as a Soviet agent. Apparently, this policy arouses dissent among many sane people of China. The fear that they might take organised action against Mao's anti-Soviet and anti-socialist policy and also a scramble for power are forcing the Maoist clique into regular reshuffles of different cadre groups . . . .

"Clearly, the Maoists need the 'Soviet menace' myth, above all, in order to divert public attention from political failures at home and to keep the people in constant tension and fear."

An article entitled "USSR - USA: Stages of Cooperation" reports that the Soviet Union has consistently advocated normalization of relations with the U. S., based on the principle of peaceful coexistence.

The article "USSR - Cuba: The Fruits of Cooperation" focuses on the economic relations between those two countries. "Loyal to the principles of socialist internationalism, the Soviet Union has put in a great deal of effort to help Cuba overcome the one-sidedness of its economy which was a legacy of the past, so that it could benefit by all the advantages of the socialist system of economic management. In its economic development Cuba relies upon the integration and mutual assistance of the socialist community."

Another Sputnik article, "Peaceful Coexistence: Who Benefits?", defines the principle of peaceful coexistence and its application to nations with contrasting political and social ideologies. "Peaceful coexistence is beneficial to all nations, it is an objective necessity of present-day international relations, its alternative being a world rocket-nuclear catastrophe. Without eliminating the historical antagonism between socialism and capitalism, peaceful coexistence gives each social system an equal opportunity to demonstrate its potentialities in the course of peaceful competition in economy, policy, science and culture and in solving social problems."

Moscow News, a weekly newspaper publication of the Union of Soviet Societies for Friendship and Cultural Relations with Foreign Countries, reports news of national and international significance, in the fields of politics and international relations, culture, sports, educational developments, and other topics. The following excerpts are representative of the material printed in the Moscow News.

CYPRUS: In September, Moscow News reprinted an article which had appeared in the Soviet newspaper, Pravda, concerning the political turmoil on Cyprus. The article stated in part: "The militarist circles in NATO have not terminated their attempts to liquidate the Republic of Cyprus as an independent and sovereign state conducting a policy of nonalignment, and to dismember it, making the territory of Cyprus a NATO stronghold in the Eastern Mediterranean. The imperialist forces are playing a criminal game against the Cyprus people, resorting to the most unseemly means, violating international law and the U. N. Charter. The putsch and crude military interference alternate with backstage diplomatic manoeuvres behind the backs of the Cyprus people and to the detriment of their interests."

PORTUGAL: In August, Moscow News commented on the situation in Portugal. "Portugal is at a stage of profound change. Following decades of arbitrary rule, terror and poverty, the country is awakening to a life of democracy and social reform. This is no simple process and the reactionaries are resisting. Foreign monopolies, which still control important branches of Portuguese economy, encourage the reactionaries to actions against the people."

"The country has just emerged from a grave political crisis engendered by a conservative attempt to hinder Portugal's democratic advancement. The right wing venture was defeated and they failed to disorganize the administration. The new government, including the Communist, the Socialist and the Popular-Democratic Parties, continues to democratize public-political life and to pursue economic development and decolonization."

MIDDLE EAST: "The roar of artillery is still heard over the Golan Heights. Israeli bombs and shells continue to explode in the streets of Lebanese towns and villages, bringing death and destruction. Alarming wires from news agencies confirm that the Middle East remains a dangerous hotbed of international tension. Making use of foreign imperialist support, Israel continues its aggressive policy, stubbornly refusing to observe U N decisions to liberate all occupied Arab territories and rudely violating the legitimate national rights of the Arab peoples."

Numerous other articles in Moscow News reported on various meetings and congresses held in cooperation with friendly socialist nations, Soviet industrial expansion and improvements, and the official government views on national and international issues of interest.

Soviet Union is an illustrated monthly magazine, which reports on various aspects of life in the Soviet Union. Throughout 1974, this publication contained articles which detailed the opportunities available to students through occupational training centers, the state of agrarian production and its future prospects, tourist attractions in the U. S. S. R., the benefits derived from cooperation among nations in the fields of science and technology which has been encouraged in conjunction with political detente, and numerous art exhibits, film productions and sports events.

Considerable attention was also focused on the prospect for world peace, based on the currently popular climate of detente. Soviet Union credits the "Peace Programme", proposed three years ago at the 24th Congress of the CPSU, as having a tremendous impact on the development of peaceful relations among nations. "The peoples of the world associate this improvement in the international climate with the successes of the Soviet Peace Programme. All its basic points, assistance to the heroic Vietnamese people in bringing their struggle to a victorious conclusion, efforts to achieve a complete and just peaceful settlement in the Middle East, consolidation of the changes in Europe resulting from the war through a number of diplomatic actions, treaties and agreements, broad recognition of the principle of the inviolability of frontiers, which has now also been confirmed by the participants in the second, Geneva, stage of the European Conference, a series of initiatives directed at curbing the arms race, towards which the Soviet-American agreement on the prevention of nuclear war was a major step, and firm support for anti-imperialist and anti-colonialist movements - all these have become living realities on the international scene."

Additional progress towards the goal of world peace has been achieved, according to Soviet Union, through: the Treaty on the Non-Proliferation of Nuclear Weapons; the prohibition of bacteriological weapons; agreements banning nuclear weapons from the seabed, the ocean floor, and outer space; agreed limitations on strategic arms; and "talks on the mutual reduction of armed forces and armaments in Central Europe."

Notwithstanding these measures, Soviet Union characterizes this era as "one of complexities and contradictions. The forces of reaction in the West are trying to knock together their united front directed against the policy of detente. They are striving, wherever they can and by whatever means, to launch a counter-attack in at least some sectors, to complicate the solution of certain pressing problems, including those of developing trade on an equal and mutually advantageous basis between the U S A and the U S S R, between the countries of the East and West. The sounds of sabre-rattling can still be heard from the NATO headquarters, which have undertaken intensive military manoeuvres in the spring of 1974 . . . ."

"There has also been an intensification in the activities of various anti-communist pulpiteers, who are attempting to prove that there is no sense in detente because, they allege, it is only advantageous to the socialist states . . . ."

Soviet Union quotes Leonid Brezhnev on the Soviet foreign policy, which he declares is a "peace offensive . . . . The word offensive implies vigorous action; it implies a constant striving to advance and further the successes that have already been achieved. We will continue this most noble offensive in the name of life on earth, in the name of our children's happiness, in the name of the present and future of humanity."

Travel to the USSR is a bimonthly magazine publication of the State Foreign Tourist Administration for the U. S. S. R. Council of Ministers. In addition to reporting travel news, including information on spas and resorts, museums and tours, this magazine also includes reports on economic development, the Council for Mutual Economic Assistance, and Soviet international relations.

Soviet Film is a monthly magazine featuring information on new Soviet film productions, film stars, films of other nations, and the history of the Soviet movie industry.

Porter International Company disseminates a biweekly newsletter, Soviet Business & Trade, on behalf of the TASS News Agency, Moscow. The information in the newsletter is compiled by TASS, which is responsible for its accuracy. The registrant edits the material furnished by TASS, and publishes the newsletter.

Each issue of the newsletter covers a wide range of current trade topics, including negotiations and proposals for new trade or economic arrangements, volume of international trade, and Soviet imports or exports with specific nations. Considerable attention was focused on the fate of the Export-Import Bank, and the Trade Reform Act of 1974 throughout the year. The newsletter reported on the formation of a private group under the name of the American Committee On U. S. - Soviet Relations, which would concern itself with U. S. - Soviet relations in general, but came out in support of most favored nation status for the U. S. S. R., and an extension of credit by the Export-Import Bank. The Committee, which will encourage a non-partisan support for legislation furthering U. S. - Soviet detente, urged members of Congress "to distinguish emigration of Soviet Jews and intellectuals from commercial considerations, because 'their position is not improved in any effective way by making it a part of our bargaining over trade.'"

Another issue of the newsletter contained a "Porter editorial" encouraging those involved in international trade to "contact their legislators in order to urge the timely passage of a trade bill which will not encumber the power of the President to effectively represent U. S. interests in international trade." The editorial states that considering "the critical condition of both the U. S. and world economics at present, and given the resultant difficulties facing international trade, the lack of concern by U. S. business circles toward the Trade Bill is both discouraging and cause for wonder."

WEST INDIESArthur L. Quinn and Arthur Lee Quinn

Statement

Arthur L. Quinn and Arthur Lee Quinn presented a statement to the House of Representatives Committee on Agriculture during hearings on the proposed extension of the Sugar Act, on behalf of the sugar industry of the West Indies, which includes Barbados, Guyana, Jamaica and Trinidad - Tobago. The economies of all of these countries are dependent on an agricultural base, and "sugar provides a firm structure on which diversified economies can be built."

The four countries referred to as the West Indies in August, 1973, founded the Caribbean Community, which includes a Common Market agreement. The Community, which replaces the older Caribbean Free Trade Association, is a "major move towards regional economic integration," which will become stronger only if the region's sugar industry continues to expand with such assured markets as provided by the U. S. sugar program.

The West Indies had never encountered any difficulty in meeting their quota obligations until 1972 and 1973, when severe draught conditions caused the sugar harvest to fall to its lowest level since 1953. For both of those years the West Indies declared shortfalls in the U. S., and were unable to fulfill their quotas. In 1974, however, the West Indies assured that their quota would be met, and announced that local governments and international agencies were supporting "extensive rehabilitation programs" in the sugar growing areas which are designed to restore and improve the various sugar industries over a five year period.

The Yugoslav Information Center disseminated numerous issues of Yugoslav Facts and Views, a newsletter publication which reports governmental views on international and national developments. One issue of Yugoslav Facts and Views reprinted the statement made by Yugoslavia's Federal Secretary for Foreign Affairs, Mr. Milos Minic, before a special session of the U. N. General Assembly, on the problems faced by underdeveloped nations. He cited the inequities involved in the economic field, with the developed nations exploiting the natural resources of underdeveloped nations, without providing adequate financial compensation or assistance in developing industrial or technological bases for the benefit of the underdeveloped nation. Mr. Minic told the Assembly that there was an obvious need for basic "structural changes of international economic relations that would secure conditions for the accelerated industrialization of the developing countries and modernization of their agriculture, based on full sovereignty over their own natural resources, and thus, also, a new international division of labor. Otherwise no solution would be possible either for the acute or for the long-term problems of the world economy.

"To this end, the urgent need for a decisive turn toward the lasting improvement of terms of trade for the developing countries should be one of the priority issues. In this connection, we have in mind, primarily, the securing of favourable conditions of access to foreign markets for products of the developing countries, at prices which will bring to an end the drain on their revenue to the developed countries. In this respect it is necessary to reach an agreement on maintaining prices of raw materials at a remunerative level, linking them to the movement of prices of industrial products and capital goods which the developing countries import from the developed nations. This mechanism should certainly be supplemented by appropriate financial arrangements to secure an adequate level of export revenue to all the developing countries."

Another issue of the newsletter reported the progress that had been made by the Yugoslav nation in the fields of economic and social development during the years from 1947 to 1973. Prior to World War II, Yugoslavia had been "an under-developed agrarian economy." The war devastated the country, causing the loss of 11% of its total population, and destroying property equal to 17% of the entire losses of the 18 allied nations. The newsletter credits a newly instituted socialist system with leading the recovery of the nation, and points out the great strides which have been made in the fields of gross national product, economic structure, agriculture, industry, foreign trade, science and technology, and the living standard, including such services as education, medicine and culture.

Another of the newsletters focuses on the long standing dispute over the Italian-Yugoslav border, and reprints the numerous agreements which have been signed in this regard over the years.

The Yugoslav Information Center also disseminated books, such as: Workers' self-management in Yugoslavia, Yugoslavia's Economic Cooperation with Developing Countries, Documents for the Tenth Congress of the League of Communists of Yugoslavia, and What Are Italy's Motives?

The principal purpose of Congress in enacting the Foreign Agents Registration Act was to require public disclosure by persons engaging in propoganda activities and other activities for or on behalf of foreign governments, foreign political parties,, and other foreign principals, so that the Government and the people of the United States may be informed of the identity of such persons and may appraise their statements and actions in the light of their associations and activities. The emphasis of the Department of Justice in its administration of the statute has been toward the achievement of this purpose. In performing its functions, the Department has continued to rely upon its normal sources of information and upon the investigative efforts of the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

Registration under the Act does not imply recognition by the United States Government either of the de jure existence or legality of the foreign principal, nor does registration indicate approval of the United States Government of the propoganda material disseminated or of the activities of the registered agent.
