SUMMARY NOTE ON TURKISH-ARMENIAN RELATIONS

CRM/ISS/REGISTRATION UNIT
2008 OCT 14 PM 4: 26

SUMMARY:

(1) Turkey has offered numerous good-will gestures to which Armenia has not responded.

(2) There is no blockade or commercial embargo imposed on Armenia. The Turkish-Armenian land border is closed for valid reasons; Turkey nevertheless permits goods and people to move unhindered.

TURKISH GOOD WILL AND UNILATERAL CONFIDENCE BUILDING MEASURES:

- Turkey was among the first to recognize Armenia's independence (December 16, 1991). Since that time Turkey has consistently followed a policy of establishing amicable relations.

- In time of need, whether due to an energy crisis or natural disaster, Turkey has never hesitated to assist the people of Armenia.

- Turkey has unilaterally employed a set of confidence building measures including;

- * Direct flight connections of Turkish company "Fly Air" and Armenian company "Armevia Airlines" up to 4 times a week between Yerevan and Istanbul, and seasonally other destinations in Turkey,

- * Facilitation of transit trade involving Armenia,

* Opening of two air corridors, UM-111 and UB-374, for international flights without restrictions, and over one-hundred overflights which utilize these corridors every month,

* Invitation extended to Armenia to become a founding member of the Black Sea Economic Cooperation (BSEC), (Armenia currently has a Permanent Representative to the BSEC in Istanbul, Turkey)

- Armenian citizens are welcome to visit Turkey through visas issued at the entry points valid for 30 days. In stark contrast, this is not reciprocated for the Turkish citizens who intend to visit Armenia.

- At any given moment, almost 40 thousand Armenian citizens reside in Turkey primarily for employment.

- Turkey's latest initiative towards Armenia is the proposal for establishing a Joint History Commission, which would be composed of Turkish and Armenian historians, as well as other experts to study the tragic events of 1915 that befell Turks and Armenians during the First World War. If required, third party participation will be welcome.

- Turkish archives are open to facilitate the work of the proposed Commission, whereas Armenian archives remain closed.

- This proposal provides a constructive step toward the full normalization of relations between Turkey and Armenia, and also reconciliation between Turks and Armenians around the globe.

- Unfortunately, three rounds of talks between the representatives of the respective Ministries of Foreign Affairs have so far not yielded satisfactory results due to Armenia's reluctance to solidly engage in the process.

- In a further frustrating step, a new bill introducing amendments into the Armenian Penal Code was adopted by the Armenian Parliament on October 4, 2006 which inhibits free expression by making it a crime to, among other things, deny genocide or crimes against humanity, even in cases where the historic record is unclear. This law now renders it impossible for any Armenian citizen, or citizen of another country in Armenia, to voice dissent on the Armenian allegation of genocide, a matter of genuine historic dispute.

- Notwithstanding these discouraging developments, Turkey is determined to continue the process of dialogue, by engaging Armenia.

NO BLOCKADE OR EMBARGO:

- Armenian allegations of a Turkish blockade or embargo towards Armenia constitute a misrepresentation.

- Turkey has neither used nor threatened to use military force at any time against Armenia since it embraced independence in 1992.

- Moreover, Turkey has not restricted travel or doing business of third party state nationals or Turkish nationals in Armenia. As a consequence, transit trade between Turkey and Armenia, or from Armenia towards third party states via Turkey, is not subjected to any restriction or hindrance.

- No Turkish law punishes Turkish individuals or corporations for trading with Armenia or hiring Armenian citizens.

- According to the Turkish-Armenian Business Development Council, Turkish-Armenian trade was in excess of $200 million in 2007. This places Turkey among the leading trading partners of Armenia.

- Over four-thousand Turkish trucks transport Turkish goods to Armenia annually via Georgia.

- When viewed from this broader perspective, allegations of a Turkish blockade or embargo towards Armenia are not only baseless but also represent a mischaracterization of these concepts.

* A blockade is an action taken against a state to isolate, obstruct and prevent communications, commerce, supplies, and persons from entering or leaving such state. It is usually a military tactic and generally considered an act of war. In light of the facts above, Turkey clearly is not blockading Armenia.

* An embargo is a government proclamation or order, usually issued during wartime, prohibiting commercial trade with individuals or businesses in the identified foreign states. As this is not the case, there is no embargo against Armenia.

CLOSURE OF THE TURKISH-ARMENIAN BORDER:

1. ARMENIAN AGGRESSION AGAINST AZERBAIJAN AND CRIMES AGAINST AZERBAIJANI CIVILIANS:

- The Turkish-Armenian border was closed when Armenia invaded its neighbour Azerbaijan, which also shares a border with Turkey, and occupied 20 percent of Azerbaijan in gross violation of international law.

- United Nations Security Council Resolutions 822, 853, 874 and 884 called this an act of aggression and have repeatedly urged the unconditional withdrawal of Armenia from the occupied Azerbaijani territories. Armenia has ignored these resolutions. The occupation continues to this day.

- The Turkish-Armenian land border was closed, therefore, to signal to Armenia that Turkey cannot abide this unlawful occupation of a neighboring state's territory, which has caused a grave humanitarian crisis with almost 1 million Azerbaijanis still remaining refugees.

2. ARMENIAN HOSTILITY TOWARD TURKEY:

- The Armenian invasion and occupation of Azerbaijan is not the sole reason for maintaining the current status of the Turkish-Armenian land border.

- Over the course of the last decade, successive Armenian governments have actively embraced a policy of hostility towards Turkey.

- It is noteworthy that,

* Article 11 of the Armenian Declaration of Independence refers to the Eastern Anatolia Region of Turkey as “Western Armenia”,

* The preamble of the Constitution of Armenia reiterates the “national objectives” contained therein the Declaration of Independence as “fundamental principles” of the Republic of Armenia,

* Article 13, paragraph 2 of the Constitution of Armenia provides that Mount Agri, which is in Turkey, is an integral part of the official coat of arms of Armenia,

* The National Security Strategy Document of Armenia, approved in January 2007, defines Turkey as “an external threat to the national security of Armenia”.

A CALL FOR RECIPROCAL TREATMENT AND FURTHER ENGAGEMENT:

- In light of these observations, Armenia should be encouraged to engage with its neighbors on a positive note.

- This certainly would facilitate its inclusion in the region-wide cooperation schemes aimed at bolstering regional prosperity.

- In addition to the numerous gestures noted above, Turkey has again taken the initiative, as the Turkish President, Prime Minister and Foreign Minister have sent letters to their Armenian counterparts in the wake of the Presidential elections in Armenia in March 2008. In these letters, they communicated their desire to build good-neighborly relations, to bring lasting solutions to the problems, and to take concrete steps to normalize bilateral relations between Turkey and Armenia.

OVERVIEW OF TURKEY'S POLICY IN SOUTHERN CAUCASUS

Turkey actively supports the integration of the Southern Caucasian countries into the European and Euro-Atlantic institutions. It believes that embracing Western values is essential for the stability of the whole Southern Caucasus.

Turkey has reiterated its support for the European Neighbourhood Policy and welcomed the Action Plans individually concluded and signed with Azerbaijan, Georgia and Armenia on 14 November 2006.

Turkey believes that regional co-operation schemes could be pivotal to improve the regional climate among the countries in the South Caucasus; and that potential for regional cooperation should be fully utilized to bolster development by increasing inter-dependence. Promotion of regional cooperation is among Turkey's priorities. Towards this end, Turkey has significantly developed its bilateral ties with Georgia and Azerbaijan, which have covered significant ground in advancing trilateral co-operation, by accomplishing the Bakü-Tbilisi-Ceyhan oil pipeline, the Bakü-Tbilisi-Erzurum natural gas pipeline and advancing the Baku-Tbilisi-Kars railroad projects. More of such projects, including rehabilitation of highways and modernization of border check points are under consideration.

Turkey has consistently followed a policy to establish amicable relations with Armenia. To this end, Turkey has unilaterally employed a set of confidence building measures such as allowing transit trade involving Armenia, direct flight connections between Yerevan and various destinations in Turkey and easing its visa regime towards Armenia. Indirect trade turnover between Turkey and Armenia puts Turkey among the leading countries in Armenia's foreign trade.

The last initiative of Turkey towards Armenia is geared towards establishing a Joint History Commission that would comprise Turkish and Armenian historians, as well as other experts entrusted with studying the events of 1915 during the First World War. Turkey believes that this would serve as a Confidence Building Measure not only between Turkey and Armenia, but also between the Turkish and Armenian peoples around the globe. Unfortunately, these good will gestures have so far not been reciprocated by Armenia.

Turkey's position concerning the frozen conflicts in the region fully corresponds with the EU's position. Persistence of the unresolved conflicts in the region poses an impediment to the establishment of peace and stability, and hinders the prospects for regional cooperation and the process for democratic change. These persisting frozen conflicts should be resolved through peaceful means on the basis of territorial integrity of the countries involved. In line with her efforts to harmonize her foreign policy with EU, Turkey aligned itself with the EU Presidency statements denouncing the "South Ossetian Presidential elections" of 12 November 2006, Abkhazian "local and parliamentary elections" of 11 February 2007 and 4 March 2007, the constitutional referendum and presidential elections of 10 December 2006 and 19 July 2007 and local elections of 14 October 2007 in Nagorno-Karabagh.

As a neighbouring country to the region and a member of the Minsk Group, Turkey has a keen interest in helping to achieve a peaceful solution to the Nagorno-Karabakh problem, and the larger Azerbaijani-Armenian conflict surrounding this issue. Armenia keeps in excess of %20 of Azerbaijan's territory under occupation, in gross violation of international law. It has so far not heeded the calls to withdraw from the occupied territories. This conflict is also the main reason of the deplorable situation of refugees and internally displaced persons in Azerbaijan, which totals to almost one million.

Furthermore, Turkey believes that the peaceful settlement of South Ossetia and Abkhazia conflicts will contribute to the political stability of the Southern Caucasus and the economic welfare of the nations in this region while opening promising prospects for regional cooperation. Hence, Turkey encourages all concerned parties to intensify their efforts in seizing every opportunity to continue their dialogue.

There are Turkish citizens of Caucasian -predominantly Georgian and Abkhazian-descent living in Turkey. Therefore, the human dimension of especially Abkhazia conflict is of direct relevance to Turkey. The Abkhaz diaspora has strong ties of kinship with their ancestral land. Turkey enjoys the trust of both Georgian and Abkhaz sides and feels that it shares the responsibility in helping to develop a peaceful solution to this conflict.

Afghanistan

Historical ties with Afghanistan and the importance attached to NATO's eventual success are the primary drivers of Turkish contributions. Turkey, having assumed the command of the Regional Command Capital (RCC) on 7 April 2007 for a period of eight months (ended in December 2007), currently retains about 800 troops in Afghanistan. In support of the inextricable link between security and development, Turkey has launched, in coordination with the Government of Afghanistan, its most comprehensive sustainable development assistance program ever. Through its PRT in Vardak, Turkey has further extended the scope of its contributions to reconstruction and development. The United States and the Conflict Over Nagorno-Karabakh

The U.S. as Mediator

The U.S. remains actively engaged in advancing a peaceful settlement of the conflict. Cooperation among the U.S., Russian, and French mediators is excellent. The United States does not recognize Nagorno-Karabakh as an independent country, and its leadership is not recognized internationally or by the United States. The United States supports the territorial integrity of Azerbaijan and holds that the future status of Nagorno-Karabakh is a matter of negotiation between the parties with the aim of achieving a lasting and comprehensive political resolution of the conflict. The United States remains committed to finding a peaceful settlement of the Nagorno-Karabakh conflict through the Minsk Group process.

Background

The armed conflict over Nagorno-Karabakh (N-K) lasted from 1990 to 1994. By the time a cease-fire went into effect in 1994, Armenian forces controlled most of the N-K region of Azerbaijan, as well as a considerable amount of adjacent Azerbaijani territory. The fighting, plus the expulsion of Armenians from Azerbaijan and Azerbaijanis from Armenia, produced more than a million refugees and internally displaced persons (IDPs). Approximately 100,000 Azerbaijanis remain in refugee camps today, where they face desperate living conditions. Turkey closed its land border with Armenia during the conflict to show solidarity with Azerbaijan and has not reopened it. The United States provides humanitarian assistance to the victims of the conflict, which includes support for housing and school repairs, primary health care, irrigation, potable water and sanitation, subsistence agriculture, micro-finance, and demining.

The parties have observed a cease-fire agreement since 1994. Although cease-fire violations and cross-border sniping occur, all sides insist on their continued commitment to a peaceful settlement reached through negotiation.

Peace Process

In 1992, the Commission on Security and Cooperation in Europe (CSCE)--now the Organization for Security and Cooperation in Europe (OSCE)--created the Minsk Group, a coalition of member states dedicated to facilitating a peaceful resolution of the conflict. The Co-Chairs of the Minsk Group (Russia, France, and the U.S.) serve as mediators, working in close and effective cooperation with the parties. In 1997-98, Co-Chair shuttle diplomacy generated three separate peace proposals. Each of these proposals was rejected by one or another of the parties.

Beginning in 1999, Presidents Heydar Aliyev of Azerbaijan and Robert Kocharian of Armenia began a direct dialogue through a series of bilateral meetings. Positive developments during a March 2001 Paris meeting among Presidents Aliyev, Kocharian, and Chirac inspired then Secretary of State Colin L. Powell to invite both Presidents to continue their dialogue in the United States. Aliyev and Kocharian met with the Co-Chairs in Key West in April 2001. The sides made significant progress but failed to reach a comprehensive settlement. Presidents Aliyev and Kocharian met on the margins of multilateral meetings in late 2001 and on the border between the two countries in August 2002 but failed to narrow their differences. President Heydar Aliyev died in 2003, and negotiations slowed as both countries held presidential elections that year.

In 2004, the Co-Chairs initiated a series of meetings in Prague between the Foreign Ministers of Armenia and Azerbaijan. The "Prague Process" was designed to reinvigorate dialogue between the sides. Following an initial series of meetings between the Foreign Ministers, Presidents Ilham Aliyev and Robert Kocharian began meeting more regularly, with a focus on advancing negotiations towards a settlement. During this period, the Co-Chairs introduced a proposed set of Basic Principles for the Peaceful Settlement of the N-K Conflict to serve as the basis for the conclusion of an eventual peace agreement. Negotiations over the Basic Principles continued throughout 2005 and 2006. On the margins of the OSCE Ministerial Council in Madrid in November 2007, the ministerial representatives of the three Co-Chair countries – Under Secretary of State Nicholas Burns, French Foreign Minister Bernard Kouchner, and Russian Foreign Minister Sergei Lavrov – formally presented a refined set of Basic Principles to the Azerbaijani and Armenian Foreign Ministers, for direct transmission to their presidents, and urged them to endorse the proposal and proceed on this basis with drafting a peace agreement. The Madrid document was archived on a confidential basis with the Secretary General of the OSCE.

The Co-Chairs have stated their intention to continue the negotiations on the Basic Principles in 2008 and to secure an endorsement from both Presidents as soon as possible.

Iran and South Caucasus

Iran and Armenia have recently taken a number of steps bringing them closer together:

- 1) On March 19, 2007, then Armenian President Robert Kocharyan and Iranian President Mahmoud Ahmadinejad inaugurated an 88-mile natural gas pipeline between Iran and Armenia. At the time, Kocharian called it a “historic event,” while Ahmadinejad stated that “our peoples are full of determination to strengthen this friendship and further develop ties.”
- 2) Work has continued on the second, 123-mile portion of this pipeline, which is expected to be completed early next year. In all, 88.3 billion cubic feet of gas will be supplied. According to a recent CRS report, some of this gas will be used to generate electricity for Iran while the remainder has the potential to “satisfy all [of] Armenia’s other consumption needs.”
- 3) In July of last year, the Armenian energy minister announced that Iran and Armenia will build two 140 MW hydroelectric power plants on the Araz River, which separates the two countries.
- 4) In November of 2007, Iran and Armenia signed a Memorandum of Understanding on defense cooperation.
 - How do you see a tightening Iran-Armenia bond affecting US interests in the Caucasus?
 - What actions should the US be taking in order to wean Armenia away from Iranian influence and further isolate Iran?

Executive Summary – Housing and Other PPP Programs

Summary of U.S. Military Presence in Rheinland- Pfalz. Rheinland-Pfalz, located in the Southwest of Germany, is home to the largest U.S. troop community outside of the United States. The state has three major U.S. military installations: Ramstein Air Base with the co-located U.S. Army installations in Kaiserslautern, Landstuhl and other places; Spangdahlem Air Base; and the U.S. Army Military Community in Baumholder. The Department of Defense has determined that Ramstein and Baumholder will continue as enduring bases and therefore the U.S. will maintain a significant presence there for the foreseeable future. Support of U.S. troops and their families has always been a priority for Rheinland-Pfalz.

1. Government Approval of Housing Program. The Government of Rheinland-Pfalz has established a development corporation that will be responsible for overseeing the building of new housing that will be made available to US troops.

Key points and developments:

- Rheinland-Pfalz has set up a development corporation and will provide guarantees to private investors.
- Low interest rate loans will also be available to private developers.
- Rheinland-Pfalz will allocate resources to help the development corporation identify the suitable properties and also to manage the projects with the USAFE.

2. Spangdahlem. (Build-to-Lease Housing Project) In the last few years, Rheinland-Pfalz has provided significant support and investment at this base and improved the base's infrastructure, including the roads and support facilities. For several years, the State has been working on proposals to improve the quality of housing for U.S. troops and thereby increase burden sharing. The Congress and the Air Force have expressed interest in a build-to-lease concept and the Department of Defense has announced its intent to fund 270 build-to-lease units. Specifically, Rheinland-Pfalz has been working to implement the build-to-lease (BTL) project in partnership with the U.S. Air Force and the German federal housing agency. This could alleviate the need for tens of millions of dollars in MILCON funds and provide a high-quality housing in the near term.

Key points:

- For this BTL project, the State will provide a 5-year guarantee on top of the 10-year guarantee provided by the U.S.
- These guarantees and low interest rate loans will enable the Air Force to attract sufficient financing from the private sector to build the housing units.

3. Baumholder Air Base. The RFP is about to be released by USAFE. Rheinland Phalz is looking at various ways to improve the training facilities at the base, enhance the security and the road infrastructure. They are also working with U.S. officials on various ways to improve the housing facilities. The U.S. Army in

ARM/ISS/RE STRA/IC UNIT

Europe has established a task force to work with officials in Rheinland Pfalz on these initiatives.

4. Opportunities for Cost-Savings and Improvements through Public-Private Partnerships (PPP). There are several existing functions or operations that currently require U.S. funding, but which may be more appropriate for a PPP structure. Under a PPP scenario, USAFE, with support from Rheinland-Pfalz, could utilize private sector capital instead of scarce appropriation funding for the acquisition of new and more efficient facilities.

For example, USAFE could use a PPP structure to acquire a new Vehicle Maintenance Facility as well as logistic facilities closer to the Ramstein base. The private sector would provide capital and the construction of new facilities, Rheinland-Pfalz would provide subsidies and financial guarantees, and USAFE would enter into a short-term operating lease. This structure would be similar to projects currently benefiting the military at bases throughout the U.S. The PPP structure can also be used as a tool for strategic realignment of facilities as well as for more effective management of real estate portfolios.

Dubai Cares Announces 12 Country Plan to Educate and Empower Children in Developing Nations

$16.6 Million Initiative in Sudan Called “Ground-breaking”

Dubai, UAE (Wednesday April 16) – After raising an unprecedented $1 billion last fall in an 8-week fundraising drive, Dubai Cares announced today twelve countries that will be the recipients of its Phase One funding. Dubai Cares has become the world’s largest charitable establishment solely devoted to improving primary education for children in developing countries.

Dubai Cares was launched by His Highness Sheikh Mohammed bin Rashid Al Maktoum, Vice President and Prime Minister of the UAE and Ruler of Dubai. Save the Children has a 75 year history of helping children recover from wars and natural disasters.

Dubai Cares has prioritized its phase one grants in countries which have the highest level of need and can deliver the maximum benefit for the children. The twelve countries chosen by Dubai Cares for Phase One include Bangladesh, Bosnia, Chad, Comoros Islands, Djibouti, Maldives, Mauritania, Niger, Pakistan, Palestinian refugees (in Lebanon and Jordan), Sudan and Yemen.

In these countries, Dubai Cares will implement needs-specific, primary education programs based on its value chain of education which will include the building of new school facilities; rehabilitating existing damaged school premises; ensuring safe water and proper sanitation facilities; distributing school supply materials; improving nutritional intake and conducting medical check-up for students and teachers; and providing training and workshops to adequately empower teachers and principals.

In today's announcement Dubai Cares provided specific details on the overall design for primary education programs in Sudan. Program details for the aforementioned countries will be announced in the near future.

Dubai Cares' partners were selected based on their track record in providing for underprivileged children around the world, as well as their access to adequate resources and infrastructure that can make an immediate impact on the ground.

Save the Children is one of these international partners which will execute specific projects covering the entire value chain of education. The first outcome of this partnership is to provide quality primary education in Sudan country-wide focusing on the following regions: Abyei, Blue Nile, Darfur, Khartoum, North Kordofan, Red Sea, South Kordofan, and Upper Nile.

Speaking about the partnership, Her Excellency Reem Al-Hashimy, Chairperson of Dubai Cares Board of Directors, said: "Save the Children is one of our major partners in Sudan, which we selected based on their 20-plus years of experience in the country. Our partnership with Save the Children is an example of how Dubai Cares ensures the maximum impact of its philanthropic efforts. Partnership agreements are negotiated to ensure minimal expenditure on over-head which increases the direct impact, thus maximizing the number of children who can access quality primary education."

She added: "Save the Children will receive a $16.6 million grant from Dubai Cares for programs in Sudan. Save the Children has one of the largest humanitarian programs currently operating in Sudan, uniquely positioning them to execute the programs."

The 5-year programs will initially provide direct support for 115,000 children in 200 schools and 50 early childhood development centers, while also ensuring all students are treated equally regardless of gender or ethnic make-up. Dubai Cares and Save the Children will also train 500 teachers to assist in introducing reading and writing skills to children as early as possible in their development.

"The commitment Dubai Cares is making today for basic education in Sudan is truly ground-breaking," said Dr. Charles F. MacCormack, president and CEO of Save the Children US. "The commitment is more than 3 times the total direct aid for basic education from all donor governments worldwide to Sudan in 2005," said MacCormack, citing the latest education funding report from UNESCO.

He added: "Direct aid for basic education in Sudan has been severely underfunded. Dubai Cares is to be highly commended to making this new commitment to help educate a generation of children in Sudan."

MacCormack noted that Save the Children Sweden and Save the Children UK will work with Save the Children US in implementing the initiative in communities across Sudan.

Dubai Cares also announced a $6.7 million, 2-year program that will be executed by UNICEF to help more than 700,000 children in Sudan. Benefits delivered by Dubai Cares programs include construction of 200 single room schools in rural areas of Sudan and training workshops for 200 teachers. In addition, children throughout Sudan will receive textbooks and school supplies and the teachers will receive educational materials.

To date, Dubai Cares has initiated primary education programs in Djibouti, Sudan and the Naher Al-Bared Palestinian refugee camp in Lebanon. As a result, 2,400 teachers are currently being trained, more than 400 schools are being built/rehabilitated and 50 early child development centers are being established. These as well as other initiatives will help 924,000 children gain access to quality primary education in these countries.

Dubai Cares today unveiled its geographic footprint for Phase One, naming 12 countries that will receive funding for needs-specific primary education programs to ensure universal access to education in developing nations. The announcement builds on Dubai Cares' current portfolio of education programs, bringing it closer to achieving its goal of educating one million children as declared by His Highness Sheikh Mohammed Bin Rashid Al Maktoum, Vice President and Prime Minister of the UAE and Ruler of Dubai.

Dubai Cares was launched as a fundraising campaign on 19 September, 2007 by His Highness Sheikh Mohammed, raising more than $500 million in eight weeks from individuals and businesses in Dubai. At the close of the fundraising drive H.H. Sheikh Mohammed matched the donations from the residents of Dubai, bring the total to almost $1 billion, making Dubai Cares the largest foundation in the world focusing on primary education globally.

Since its launch, Dubai Cares has established itself as a fully transparent, multilateral, non-profit organization, making sure that every dirham raised is spent strategically for maximum impact. Dubai Cares will operate based on international best practices for foundations worldwide to ensure financial transparency. The charitable establishment has positioned itself as a strategic coordinator actively engaged with international aid agencies to develop primary education programs and to ensure immediate impact on the ground.

Save the Children is the leading independent organization creating lasting change for children in need around the world. For more than 75 years, Save the Children has been helping children survive and thrive by improving their health, education and economic opportunities and, in times of acute crisis, mobilizing rapid lifesaving assistance to help children recover from the effects of war, conflict and natural disasters.

Dubai Cares is founded on the vision of His Highness Sheikh Mohammed who believes that education is the best long-term solution to combat poverty and that educating children, especially girls, is a key component to fighting the global 'cycle of poverty'. It represents Dubai's contribution to the U.N. Millennium Development Goals for providing primary education to every child by 2015. The initiative validates the emirate's commitment to play an effective role in securing a better tomorrow for future generations.
