I am responsible for advancing the visit of the Prime Minister of Zimbabwe to the United States, in early June, 2009. As part of that, I meet with US officials to understand the policy of the United States with respect to Zimbabwe and the government of Zimbabwe, and pass that information back to the Prime Minister's office. I also coordinate with multi-lateral organizations which are based in Washington DC, and think tanks.

The United States supports the transition to a democratically elected regime in Zimbabwe. The Prime Minister represents that democratic transition. The United States has also been instrumental in supplying food and medical assistance to the Zimbabwean people. The goal of the Prime Minister's trip is to thank the people of the United States for their support and explore additional avenues of cooperation.

My assignment is to schedule the Prime Minister with appropriate officials to obtain that result.
